Cast in leading roles in the diplomatic conclave on which hangs not only the peace of Europe, but possibly the life of the League itself, are: Premier Pierre Laval of France; Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian representative; Prof. Gaston Jeze of the Paris Sorbonne, representing Ethiopia; M. 1536 PERSONS SAVED AT SEA

Both Atlantic and Pacific ocean waves were cheated of human prey today when the greatest number of persons rescued from disabled ships ever known to Maritime folk owe their lives and safety to quick action, cool headed work and the fulfillment of the highest traditions of the sea. A total of 1,536 persons were reported saved. Of this number 736 were rescued from the great British liner Doric in the Atlantic and 400 from the steamer Whippingham in the English Channel, while 384 more were accounted for aboard the American steamship Dixie trapped on a Florida reef while one of the worst hurricanes ever known took an appalling toll of death on land nearby. The Canadian coast accounted for 16 rescued from the schooner Fayall at St. Johns, Newfoundland.

Her Shrieks Did No Good

A lot of things happened in the 2 minutes and 38 seconds of the Buddy Baer-Jack Doyle incident in Madison Square Garden, New York. Buddykins, all 238 pounds of him, popped the Irish crooner with a few questionable punches; Doyle dropped three times and Referee Billy Kavanagh stopped the fight—all to the tune of ringside shrieks and a swoon or two from the part of Judith Allen, screen actress wife of Doyle.

NUMBER VICTIMS GROWING

Governor's Aide Reports Casualties in Stricken Area May Reach 1,000

Words Cannot Describe Horrible Disaster of Roaring Hurricane

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 5.—W. P. Mooty, personal representative of Governor Dave Sholtz in the hurricane area, today advised the chief executive fatalities from the storm "May reach 1,000."

"Words cannot describe horrible disaster," Mooty said in a telegram to the governor. "Everyone as far south as Carabee colony has been moved out. Injured first. Now moving dead, fifty so far. Rebuilding bridges to cross Snake Creek."

Broken Bodies Of Victims Storm Tossed

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 5.—On a little coral strand in the Florida Archipelago—Matecumbe Key, named by the ancient Calosas as "the place of sorrow"—so the legend goes—the hurricane of Monday night wrought its worst.

Even now the broken bodies of its storm victims are strewn in the gnarled wastes of Mangrove, twisted steel and crumbled concrete. Men still hazed, in tatters and blood stained bandages, limped about the debris. More than 200 relief camp veterans were missing from upper and lower Matecumbe.

Tales of terror were told simply by the survivors.

One of the most dramatic stories to come out of the storm was told by P. Pugh, top-sergeant at Camp Three, whose leg was severely injured.

"At 5 o'clock Monday afternoon," he said, "we noticed the first stiffening of the wind. The men ran for the mess hall. Suddenly the roof of the mess hall went flying off. The men scattered, most of them seeking safety on the railroad embankment.

ITALY WAR TO LAST 4 YEARS

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—The expected war between Italy and Ethiopia may last four years, stated General Sir Thomas Astley-Cubitt, governor and commander-in-chief of Bermuda, before his sailing last night on the liner Lady Rodney for Bermuda.

Deputy commissioner of the Somaliland protectorate in 1914, and in command of troops there during the Great War, Sir Thomas said the Italians would not defeat the Ethiopians in a day or not in 100 days. "For all we know now, this war which seems to be at the point of breaking out, may last indefinitely."

STEVENS SAYS WAR MANDATE IS ESSENTIAL

Reconstruction Leader At Montreal Opens Quebec Campaign

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—Canadian participation in any European war without first consulting the people and receiving from them a mandate would not even be considered by him, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction party leader, told an audience here last night.

"I'm against it," he said positively when asked to declare his attitude on war.

The first task of the Canadian parliament should be to see that Canadian unemployed were at work before talking about an immigration policy, he said. "Our main task is to find jobs for our own people." He believed that many of the so-called "unjust taxes" might be eliminated rapidly if the government of Canada adopted an enlightened financial policy. The federal authorities should assume full responsibility for old age pensions.

ATTACKS BANKS

In his first Quebec speech of the present campaign Mr. Stevens again attacked Canadian banking and financial interests.

He hit out at "St. James Street" in the city where the famous street is located. A handful of men were throttling Canadian industry through their control of credit, he said. "I have their names right here," he added, striking the brief case containing his material, "but you could name 10 out of the dozen."

NOT FUNCTIONING

Canadian banks had become "safety deposit boxes for government bonds," he charged. They had increased their "frozen assets" by $531,286,000 in the past five years, while current loans had dropped by $573,450,000. They failed to give leadership to Canadian business. They did not supply the normal flow of credit necessary for Canada to do her business.

Ladies Take Politics Seriously At Faust

FAUST, Sept. 5.—A tale of how an innocent bystander was made a victim of political fur-flying in this district before the provincial election has finally filtered through to townspeople.

Seated between two older ladies in the rear seat of an automobile, a young lady had a fortunate escape from injury when the older women fell to hair pulling and scratching after failing to verbally settle a political argument.

Although decidedly neutral in the proceedings, all attacks and counter-attacks passed over the young lady in question before reaching their respective goals.

LISBON, Sept. 5—Seven hundred and thirty-six passengers on the Cunard-White Star liner Doric were taken off by lifeboats of the big British steamships Orion and Viceroy of India today after a collision with the French freighter Formigny, about 38 miles off the coast of Portugal last night in a dense fog.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—More than 700 cruise passengers were safely taken off the Cunard-White Star liner Doric today after she had been in collision with the small French steamship Formigny off the coast of Portugal.

The 16,484-ton liner, formerly in the Canadian service, sent an SOS after the collision. It was reported not badly damaged, and the Formigny also suffered little damage, but 736 passengers were taken off the Doric. The crew remained aboard.

Wireless messages said the liner Orion of the Orient line had taken 400 passengers, and the Viceroy of India the remainder. They were close at hand when the SOS was received. According to Reuters correspondent at Lisbon, the sea was calm.

The 12,000 new Orion turned its maiden voyage into a rescue expedition, being the first to reach the Doric's aid. The Viceroy of India is Britain's first all-electric ship of 19,000 tons.

The Doric, formerly in service between Britain and Montreal and Quebec, was bound from Gibraltar to London when there Saturday. She was launched at Belfast Aug. 9, 1923.

The scene of the collision was only a few miles southwest of Oporto.

Channel Ship Manifest Of 400 Rescued

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 5. —Four hundred passengers were rescued today from the British passenger steamer Whippingham after it signalled distress off The Needles, west of the Isle of Wight in the English Channel.

The rescue was made by other paddle steamers which answered the signal. A destroyer also went to aid.

The Whippingham, a vessel of 823 tons owned by the Southern Railway, left Portsmouth at 1:30 p.m. for Bournemouth, then anchored off The Needles at 4:30 p.m. and signalled for assistance.

SCHOONER CREW SAVED

ST JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 5.—A message from Fogo today said the crew of the 575-ton schooner Fayal were safe after their vessel had struck a rock and sunk while entering harbor there.

Her crew of 16 made land without difficulty in dories.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 5.—Tropical Radio reported today that all of the remaining passengers aboard the grounded steamer Dixie had been taken aboard three rescue ships this morning. A rising sea and rain had rescue last night. There was a total of 384 persons saved, the owners' agents reported.

A report, from H. S. Hebble, supervising engineer of the line at Miami, was made to the Morgan Line offices in New York almost 48 hours after a hurricane had swept the big ship on the jagged reef.

At the time the weather halted rescue efforts, 110 passengers and 34 crewmen had been transferred from the Dixie to six other ships, Hebble asserted.

RESCUE HALTED

"Had to stop transfer account rising seas and rain," his report stated.

The cutter Carrabasset, in a wireless message to Jacksonville coastguard headquarters, said a stiff southwest gale halted the lifeboats from the fleet of rescue craft with their task of rescuing the Dixie's passengers and crew from jagged French Reef less than half completed.

NOT IN DANGER

While definite information was lacking, it was believed the remaining passengers aboard the Dixie were in no immediate danger. There was every indication the sturdy liner, although taking some water, was holding her own.

Details of the rescue had undertaken by 11 or more vessels was described by Willard K. Brown,

INFLUENCE ON MOON, SUN, ON SOLID EARTH

English Scientist Presents New Theory Upon Continent-Drift

NORWICH, Eng., Sept. 5.—Suggestion the tidal influence of moon and sun may exert "permanent disturbing influence on the solid earth itself" was made here last night by W. W. Watts, emeritus professor of geology at the Imperial College of Science and Technology, in his presidential address to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

In his paper on the "Form, Drift and Rhythm of the Continents," Prof. Watts remarked some Alpine geologists had used gravitation to explain "nappes" of rock, cut off from their origin and dozens of miles from it.

"Is there no other force, comparable in its method of action to gravitation, but capable of producing movement of the earth-crust in a direction other than downhill?" he asked.

"Is it not possible for instance that the tidal influence of the moon and sun, which is producing so much distortion of the solid earth that the ocean tides are less than they would be otherwise, and, dragging always in one direction, is slowing down the earth's rotation, may exert permanent disturbing influence on the solid earth itself?

"May it not be that such a stress if not sufficiently powerful to produce the greater displacements of continental drift and mountain-building, may yet take advantage of structures of weakness produced by other causes, and itself contribute to the formation of nappes and to other movements of a nature at present unexplained?"

A feature of the Atlantic ocean, said Prof. Watts, in a reference to the theory of "continental drift" was the parallelism of much of its eastern and western coasts, suggesting the possibility the two sides may once have been united.

BENNETT GIVES JAPAN WARNING

The dominion would then be free to take such other steps as the national interest may require.

Early Completion Of Negotiations With C.N. Likely

Early completion of negotiations with the C.N.R. for a definite arrangement regarding use of the abandoned railway grade in connection with the Jasper highway is hoped for, Premier William Aberhart said on Thursday.

The Premier said that if a way hoped the grade would be widened as early as possible.

TOKYO, Sept. 5.—The price of Japanese wheat has risen in the past two months from 3.45 yen (currently $1.61) per bale of two bushels to 7.5 yen ($2.21) and the trend upward continues. The price is already about 16 yen (47 cents) above the average price in 1934.

This year's wheat crop in Japan had been estimated at 46,000,000 bushels but the present estimate sets it at 43,000,000 bushels, which would be 15 per cent less than the 1934 crop. This decrease is one of the main causes of the price rise.

TRANSIENTS TURN THUMBS DOWN ON WORK-FOR-WAGES

KING PROMISES NEW TARIFF POLICY

TRADE SICKNESS NEEDS GRADUAL CURE TREATMENT

No Fell Swoop But Slow, Careful Remedy Planned By Liberal Chief.

HALIFAX, Sept. 5.—High tariffs imposed by the Bennett government will be removed gradually under a Liberal regime, Liberal leader Mackenzie King said in a speech here last night. A Liberal government, however, would "not injure any legitimate industry" by lowering tariffs and would not take away any of the protection given Canadian industry prior to 1930.

"So far as duties were imposed under Sir Wilfrid Laurier's regime and under the other Liberal governments," said Mr. King, "all that was done for the good of industry will be preserved and will not be destroyed. But so far as new, excessive and arbitrary tariffs have been imposed, we will look at what has been done since 1930 and we will undo what has been done by the present government in that direction."

NO RASH ACTION

The Liberals might have to proceed gradually in lowering tariffs, he warned. They did not intend "at one fell swoop to wipe away all that the present government has done." Nor to place any Canadian industry at the mercy of world competition under new conditions which had grown up in the last five years.

Canadian trade needed a physician. When a physician was called in, and found a patient was getting wrong treatment he changed the treatment gradually to avoid shock and disturbance. A Liberal government would act as a physician and would go carefully in applying its new tariff treatment.

LOST OPPORTUNITIES

Mr. King charged the Bennett government with neglecting opportunities to negotiate a trade treaty with the United States. President Roosevelt had issued what amounted to an open invitation to Canada to negotiate a treaty two years ago. Other countries, Sweden, Belgium, Brazil, Haiti among them, had obtained treaties and Canada could have done the same.

CANADA SHACKLED

The empire trade pacts had "bound and shackled" Canada in negotiations with the United States by pegging the tariff. Mr. Bennett also had sought to drag out the negotiations to serve his purpose in the election campaign rather than push them forward to serve the interests of Canada.

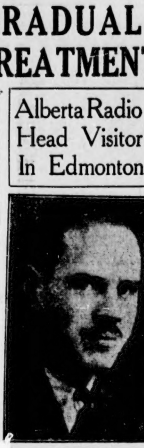

The liberal policy was to abolish all excessive and unwarranted increases in the tariff and the fixing of tariffs and values for duty by order-in-council. There were dumping duties before the Bennett government came and the same and a Liberal government would not expose Canadian producers to dumping by all countries. Dumping duties would be retained.

DIFFICULTIES AHEAD

But the arbitrary method of fixing values for duty with no appeal action made for uncertainty and hampered business. This uncertainty would go with the high and excessive and prohibitory tariffs would be abolished.

"This country is in the midst of difficult times," said Mr. King. "Within the next five years it will be confronted with the most difficult problems in its history. If those problems are to be solved it will not be by the genius of any one individual who calls himself a leader and gets together a party but by the collective wisdom of a great body of men and women, schooled in experience and fortified by traditions such as the Liberal party."

who flew over the grounded liner by night.

FLEW OVER BOATS

"Choppy seas and winds made the task difficult," he said. "As we flew over, we saw three lifeboats in the water carrying passengers. The boats were bobbing up and down like corks in the rough water—sometimes you could see them, sometimes waves hid them. But the passengers apparently unworried by the danger, seemed cheerful. They waved eagerly at us."

The passengers were being taken off the Dixie's far side, pulled around the bow and out into the open sea, where other ships were standing by, Brown reported.

All-Weather Road To Jasper Before Winter Starts In

MAGIC EYE IS NEW FEATURE VICTOR RADIO

R. A. Forbes, General Manager, Introduces New Receivers

Radio listeners are in for a brand new thrill ... it's the "Magic Eye", the new phenomenon of radio in the 1936 "Magic Brain" sets of RCA-Victor.

At a dealer banquet held in the Macdonald hotel Wednesday night, 12 new electrically operated RCA-Victor sets and four new RCA-Victor battery sets were presented by Roy Forbes, general manager of the company.

Mr. Forbes was introduced to the RCA-Victor dealers by Charles Gordon, distributor chief for Alberta and W. W. Basson, manager of the Edmonton office.

INTEGRAL PART

Speaking to his dealers Mr. Forbes said, "Look to the organization behind the line you sell. RCA-Victor is an integral part of the vast communications and entertainment empire comprising the National Broadcasting Company, RCA Communications, RKO-Radio Pictures, RKO Theatres, Pathe News, Radio Music Corp, RCA Institutes, and the RCA Manufacturing Company."

The new 1936 RCA-Victor "Magic Brain" sets pile feature on feature. Having pioneered the peanut tubes and the screen grid tubes, RCA-Victor now introduces the metal tube, silencing the annoying crackle of the static by shielding cans and subduing the microphone hiss that clouds good reception.

"From the birth of radio entertainment," said Mr. Forbes, "RCA-Victor has blazed the trail with this AC receiver, super-hetrodyne circuit, dynamic speaker, airplane dial, globe tuner, magic eye tuning and the selector dial with the band spreader.

SILENT TUNING

The "Magic Eye" revolutionizing radio reception "sees" for the radio owner, accomplishing what was left for the human eye to detect. Not only does the super-sensitiveness of this amazing creation make it possible for the radio listener to see the signals but it brings silent tuning as well.

The "Magic Eye" controls as many as five separate broadcast bands. A thousand and one radio waves, travelling at a speed of 186,000 miles per second crowd in on RCA-Victor's "Magic Brain" . . . all demanding an entrance.

But the "Magic Brain" admits only one wave . . . the one to which the listener has dialed.

The new sets have tone that is vibrant with color . . . and realism—a tone that surpasses even RCA-Victor's previous leadership.

The seemingly super-human qualities of RCA-Victor's "Magic Brain" are developed by highly skilled engineers and scientists to give a lasting brilliance of performance to all models from the simple yet beautiful four-tube superheterodyne mantel set to the imposing and impressive 21-tube combination.

Mr. Forbes illustrated his talks on a series of charts and then amid the floodlights, the new models were presented on a velvet curtain, covered dias.

All RCA-Victor men of this city were present along with many dealers from towns in the Edmonton district.

TO EXPEDIATE ARRIVAL OF MAJ. DOUGLAS

Major C. H. Douglas, originator and chief proponent of the Douglas System of Social Credit, who is acting as chief reconstruction adviser to the Alberta government, will come here to re-commence his work, as soon as possible, Premier William Aberhart declared on Thursday.

Following a cabinet meeting, the Premier said that all information required would be forwarded to Major Douglas and efforts would be made to expediate his arrival here.

The Premier also announced that the government would continue the policy of assisting Alberta exhibitors to show grain and livestock at the Toronto Royal Winter Fair and the Chicago exposition.

The Dominion government has provided 75 per cent of the costs of shipping exhibits and the exhibitor has provided 25 per cent. It is hoped that similar arrangements will be continued.

Further assistance will be given the agricultural industry in that feeder cattle will be assisted, with finance companies purchasing cattle and feeding them and the government guaranteeing same, with the government being reimbursed when the cattle are sold.

LITTLE DEMAND FOR HARVEST AID

Little demand for harvest help has been received here, according to employment service officials. Cutting has not yet started on any extensive scale and until it becomes general the demand is not expected to be great.

From information reaching the city from rural points, it is believed that the demand for help will be kept to a minimum.

Farmers are attempting to economize in every possible way and are doing as much of the work as they can with their own families.

In many instances the women and children are running the combines and the men are doing the stooking.

Community harvesting also has made its appearance. Some families are combining in districts in haivesting and when the crop of one family is garnered, the combined forces of the families move to another farm and do the work there.

On his way back from the Peace River Block to the Pacific Coast and up to the other section of the B.C. constituency, John A. Fraser, Conservative M.P. for Cariboo for the past 10 years and present candidate, arrived in the city Thursday with news of the best crop in history now being cut in the north.

"Marvelous," was the way Mr. Fraser described the Peace River grain fields.

Wheat needs 10 more days of hot weather before harvest becomes general in the north, he said.

LAST GROUP IS RESCUED FROM DISABLED SHIP

Passengers Leave Reef of Death Behind in Lifeboats

Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 5—Swiftly and uneventfully, the last group of passengers was removed today from the stranded and battered liner Dixie, their perilous prison since last Monday night. In less than three hours, the last of the 143 marooned passengers was transferred.

The life boats shuttled over placid waters, the be-piling hurricane that crippled the Dixie and ground her against the talons of French reef, death trap of the Florida Keys, having spent its force.

Aboard the hapless Dixie, still pinioned to the reef, remained Captain E. W. Sundstrom and a skeleton crew, that the Morgan line might keep possession of her.

The task of transferring the passengers was completed while the rescued persons unfolded a sea saga of courage.

OVER CALM SEA

Over calm sea, a low, overcast sky threatening, the life boats shuttled to and from the side of the Dixie.

"Started to load passengers six a.m. on launch of Charlier," Captain Sundstrom wirelessed offices of the Morgan line in New York. "First boat takes 20 passengers."

Subsequent messages from the Dixie came swiftly.

"Second launch left ship with 18 passengers."

"Third launch, 18 passengers."

"Fourth launch, 18 passengers."

Thus, the story of the transfer was told in terse radio messages.

TRANSFERRING RESUMED

When the transferring was resumed this morning, 220 persons—143 passengers and 77 members of the crew—were on the Dixie.

Divisional headquarters of the coast guard at Jacksonville, Fla., received word from the cutter Tallapoosa that it had aboard 54 of the Dixie's passengers—brought to her by two motorboats, the salvage tug Warbler and two coast guard boats.

Fully cognizant of what their fate might be, the passengers displayed a calmly, willingly suppressing any demonstration of terror while waiting for rescue.

A message from Captain Sundstrom explained the transfer last night of members of the crew before all the passengers had been taken off.

"As numerous lifeboats are available, also transferred to Dixie the commissary crew at a point where passengers could not be handled."

SALT DEPOSITS, MENTAL HOMES TO BE PROBED

Investigation of the salt deposits of the Fort McMurray area with a view to developing the industry and obtaining markets for the product, will be undertaken by the provincial lands and mines department within the next month, Premier William Aberhart declared on Thursday.

The deposits are known to be extensive and valuable, but transportation difficulties have precluded development in the past.

The Premier also stated that the health department would commence a probe of the mental institutions.

Those institutions, he said, are already overcrowded and despite the fact that the country is under way for erecting a $100,000 addition to the Oliver institution, this will be overcrowded as soon as it is completed and further space will be needed.

This probe will start at once under the direction of Hon. W. W. Cross, minister of health.

The Ponoka mental population is more than 1,000, while that at Oliver is scarcely less.

20 Applications For Vaccination

Approximately 20 applications have been received by the city health and school medical departments from parents desiring their children to be vaccinated with the new vaccine which is being procured from New York for immunization against infantile paralysis, it was revealed Thursday. No new cases were reported Thursday.

This treatment is purely voluntary, and the school health authorities are not considering forced vaccination of pupils. Use of this vaccine has proved successful in New York, it is stated.

Seventeen applications for treatment have been received by the city health department and several more by the school medical branch. The vaccine will reach Edmonton soon.

Representatives of the larger departmental stores conferred with city commissioners and promised co-operation in connection with precautionary measures taken to stop the spread of the disease. It is possible children will be prevented from visiting stores, and this suggestion will be discussed at the general meeting of the health board called for 4:30 p.m., Thursday.

IL DUCE NOT BUDGING ON FIRM STAND

expulsion from the League. Nor was any mention made of sanctions. But Italy presented a bulky memorandum, filled with arguments against Ethiopia's continuance in the League.

IL DUCE FIRM

Mussolini reserves complete liberty of action either to remain in the League, to leave it or to declare war against Ethiopia, Aloisi made clear.

Surprise was expressed in Addis Ababa at the sudden withdrawal of the Standard-Vacuum Oil Company concession. It was also authoritatively reported Dr. W. C. Martin, Ethiopian minister to London, delayed his own property in Ethiopia to Leo V. Chertok, New York broker, as security for an American loan of $1,000,000. The state department in Washington began an inquiry into the concession obtained by Chertok.

NOT BLUFFING

A government spokesman in Rome said the world should understand no sanction of any sort or any nature will divert Italy from her course" and "there should be complete understanding on every-where that Italy is not bluffing."

In London the admiralty announced an aircraft carrier and a "few minor units" are en route to the Mediterranean, but declined to name the ships.

CALGARY HEAD SEEKING AID

Seeking a loan of $500,000 from the dominion treasury to finance his city through troublous periods, Mayor Andy Davison, of Calgary, arrived here on Thursday and prepared to confer with Premier William Aberhart regarding same.

Because Calgary has borrowed up to the limit of its security, the banks have refused to extend further credit and unless aid is forthcoming business will be impossible unless financial assistance is forthcoming.

The dominion government will not deal direct with cities, but insists on them negotiating through the provincial governments.

On July 2 last, Calgary obtained a $250,000 loan from the dominion, all of which has been expended except what is required by the city to remain solvent and not repudiate maturing debenture obligations.

FLORIDA TOLL IN HURRICANE STAGGERS U.S.

Others sought shelter in huts and other buildings, which began crashing around us.

Around 70 men grabbed a water tank car. The wind gained in fury and the water started rising. We expected it creeping up the hill.

"It was hell to just hang on and not be able to do anything.

"Men who have known all the rough edges of life, who had not thought of God in years, prayed all night. I heard them mumbling prayers as they held to the car and trucks with debris pelting their bodies."

War Veterans Suffer In Wind Holocaust

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 5.—The raging tropical hurricane which swept the Florida Keys with an unofficial toll of from 200 to 500 lives was headed back northeastward across the state last night with apparently diminishing force.

No estimate of the crop and property damage could yet be obtained and it was likely a factual total of the loss of life would not be available for days. Rescue forces were being organized in all parts of the affected area.

Coast guard headquarters at Washington were informed by the Jacksonville station that between 200 and 400 persons were dead at Matecumbe, where a number of war veterans were engaged in a road building project.

A special rescue train of 11 cars sent into the keys are to evacuate the veterans and other residents there, never was able to perform its errand of mercy—it, too, fell a victim of the storm. Swirling flood waters washed out the tracks from around it and beneath it and the coaches toppled over into the mud and water. A twisted mass of wreckage. The crew was reported safe.

ALCOHOL, OPIUM DEGENERATE ETHIOPIA TRIBES

JAPS CULTIVATE BIG POPPY AREAS: MAKE HUGE PROFIT

Abyssinians, Like All Hard Smokers, Apologize for Their Vice—Say It's Helliah Habit.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Bulletin Staff Foreign Writer

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 5.—The Abyssinians, who conquered Egypt and saw the pyramids under construction, have a song which goes this way: "In Europe and America men kill each other with rifles. But us they kill with alcohol." Slavery and alcohol go together. The tribes amongst whom slavery is hardest to eradicate the Chankalias, the Guthmarins and the Oualalamos, are also the worst addicted to alcohol. Whole districts are utterly degenerated. It is a bad, in fact, that the government passed a decree of prohibition in 1914. That decree had the effect of stimulating the drink-evil amongst the natives as happened in Russia shortly after the revolution when the Soviets introduced prohibition. The tribesmen started to manufacture their own liquor.

Pierre Van Paassen

Opium is also making its appearance. That poison was unknown before 1930, the year when the Japanese began to install themselves in the country. At present immense fields of poppies are under cultivation. The opium is exported to China by the Japanese, where they compete with the British, who formerly had the opium-monopoly in the celestial empire. The opium-trade is one of Japan's "legitimate interests" in Abyssinia, which the Tokio government is prepared to "defend at any cost," according to the message from the Nippon foreign office at the address of Signor Mussolini, whose newspapers screamed hell and blue-murder about Japanese impudence. The Abyssinians are learning the qualities of opium. One of them told me that it makes you happy as an angel in heaven." Opium costs $2.50 a kilogram in Ethiopia. It is sold in small packages of a few grams each in China. The Japanese importers make a ten thousand per cent profit on it.

BUT NO ALCOHOL

The Moslems in Abyssinia are the worst opium smokers. They do not use alcohol, of course, being the strictest prohibitionists on earth. But Mohammed never said a word about opium, for the good reason that the stuff was unknown in Arabia in the fourteenth century.

Guecho is the name of the moonshine they peddle here. It has no kick, no headache, but it makes the tongue loose and induces heavy sleep. It's good stuff to give a man if you want him to talk. Not a drop belt. He never wakes up for ten or twelve hours after a good spot of guecho. It is a drug. It is because of this quality, that once habituated to its use one must take more and more of it to feel its stimulation. Well-to-do Abyssinian families sip it all day, but the man who takes it for the first time is knocked out and dead to the world till morning.

LEARNED FROM ARABS

Smoking they learned from the Arabs or the Dutch. I don't know. My grandfather used to go to bed with a clay pipe in his mouth. The last thing he did was take off the silk hat which he always wore and replace it with the cigar on the cash-tray on the little night-table. He put a fresh cigar ready and a box of matches by the bed, to smoke in the morning. The Arabs, too, are inveterate smokers, but the Abyssinians beat them. One Ethiopian merchant told me that he keeps his nargileh alight during the night and that makes the awakening man grabs one of the tubes and sucks a little blue smoke till he dozes off again. The fellow surpasses my grandfather, whom I always had thought unsurpassable.

SMOKING A HARDSHIP

The funniest thing is that Abyssinians, like all hard smokers, apologize for their vice. They say it's a hellish habit, they should never have started it, that it must be "Satan," the devil, who tempts them. They curse the day when they smoked their first pipe. But they never give it up. Smoking has become indispensable, and ineradicable habit. I wonder how they are going to do when they are mobilized to go to the front one of these days. Will they take their nargilehs with them, and take a puff between battles? We will see strange things yet here, I am sure.

To be invited to a home for a quiet evening smoke, as I have been several times, is a torture. They keep the fire in their nargileh burning by putting some old rags on it. These let forth smouldering and stinking and making your eyes water till you can't see a thing. Smoking is fun, but that way! But the Ethiop-boys don't mind. The smell is no objection. So long as they can suck tobacco fumes. I should add yet that when they are not smoking they are chewing the brown leaves or sprinkling all over the place. The women take snuff about which I will say nothing, nothing except this, that they are always sneezing.

MIXED WITH HONEY

Tobacco was unknown in Abyssinia in 1850. In another hundred years, a French missionary said to me: the trinity of tobacco, opium and alcohol will have destroyed the Ethiopian race, if nothing is done about it. Just the same, I find the odors emanating from an Ethiopian dram-shop not as disgustingly foul as what you can smell sometimes in passing some of those vile dens called "bistrots" in the Etuves St. Martin and other slums of Paris. Ethiopian alcohol is mixed with honey. It lacks that raw, pestiferous, gutter smell acidity, one so frequently encounters in the ghettoes of the European proletariat.

Even so, progress is undeniable. Thirty, twenty, even fifteen years ago, it was not safe to venture far outside the city of Addis Ababa. The territory separating the capital from the Red Sea was inhabited by a mass of Galawich and Somalis whose pride it was to kill at least one white man in their lives. Some killed hundreds. Massacres were frequent in the past. Disembowelling was the favorite way of dispatching a victim. He expired after he was mutilated. All this is gone at least in the central provinces.

CURIOUS CUSTOMERS

There are still some curious customers in the outlying districts and they are troublesome enough, for they live near the borders of the Italian colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland, and since they do not know what a frontier is, but consider all the world their own sporting-ground, it's quite a job for the Negus to keep them in bounds. This is exactly the point which Mussolini has taken as a pretext for his threats of intervention in Abyssinia. The negus can't control his own subjects, they say in Rome. It's as good a pretext as any. If this one hadn't worked, you may be sure that the fine Roman nose of the Duce would have sniffed out another one.

PIONEER BANK OF S. CHINA CLOSES DOORS

Depression — U. S. Silver Policy Blamed for Crash

HONG KONG, Sept. 5.—South China's financial structure was shaken today by the closing of the Bank of Canton, pioneer Chinese banking house. Officials of other Chinese banks, however, voiced confidence in their ability to meet heavy withdrawals resulting from public nervousness.

The falling off of remittances from overseas, the depression in China and the effects of the American silver purchasing policy were blamed by officers of the Bank of Canton for suspension of payments.

"The depositors," they announced, "will be fairly well protected."

Capitalized at 11,000,000 Hong Kong dollars (approximately $5,000,000), much of which was contributed by Chinese abroad, the bank had branches in many cities.

C.N.R. SHIP SINKS FISHER B.C. CRAFT

Four of Crew Narrowly Escape Death in Straits

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5.—Four members of the Seattle fishing vessel Anna J which sank in Seymour narrows early Wednesday after being rammed astern by another vessel, arrived here last night on board the Pacific Navigation Company's tug, Cape Scott.

(When the Canadian National steamship Prince Rupert docked here Wednesday her master reported having lightly brushed an unidentified craft in the narrows. The captain said he could not stop his own ship because of the dangerous currents but as he heard no cry for help nor saw any distress signal he believed the other vessel had not been damaged seriously.)

NARROW ESCAPE

The four who arrived last night, still a bit shaky from their brush with death, Wallace Munro, Martin Fenwick, John Sather and Anton Molver, left on the night boat for Seattle.

Ed. Lawler, master and owner of the Anna J, and George Follett, cook, were dropped at Campbell River by the tug and returned to survey the wreck.

SEATTLE-BOUND

Captain Lawler and Follett were on the bridge as the vessel pushed her way cautiously through the narrows, bound for Seattle with a cargo of 16,000 pounds of halibut from the Hecate Strait fishing grounds, when he saw a light astern. The next moment, he said, his vessel gave a sudden lurch and the bow swung toward the beach.

HEADS FOR BEACH

The four men sleeping below were thrown out of their bunks by the shock and scrambled for the deck as water poured through a gaping hole in the stern.

Captain Lawler headed for the beach and reached shallow water before the vessel sank with little more than her pilot house showing. The crew scrambled ashore where they lit a fire and succeeded in attracting the attention of the Cape Scott which picked them up.

The Anna J was valued at $15,000 and her catch at $1,500.

Fire Hose Fails To Rout Birds; Starlings Defiant

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 5.—London's fire department does not know how to drive away starlings, but it does know it can't be done with the hose. The firemen tried it yesterday.

"We turn a high-pressure water line on the flocks of starlings and the birds simply vacate the limbs and flit to a tree a short distance down the block. North section residents are fed up with the birds and the fire department is getting fed up with the job of driving them out.

PLANETS HARBOR NO SUCH PEOPLE AS EARTH FOLKS

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—No beings like those of this world exist on the planets, according to Dr. J. S. Plaskett, C.B.E., Victoria, B.C. astronomer candidate for the nomination, at Ford where he lectured on the stars.

"I am very often asked if people live on the planets," said Dr. Plaskett, who recently retired as director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria. "My answer is that I don't know. Certainly no beings exist on the planets such as exist on this earth. Only on two could people possibly live—Venus and Mars.

The earth is very insignificant in the scheme of things. Dr. Plaskett said. For purposes of purpose the earth might be compared to a tiny fleck of dust on a large phonograph record whirling endlessly in space.

The solar system of which the earth is a tiny unit, forms one of the galaxy of stars, the milky way. This huge mass of planets is shaped something like a pancake 100,000 light years across and 3,000 light years in thickness.

The galaxy, Dr. Plaskett, rotates on its own axis, and at the dizzy rate of 200 miles a second, yet it takes 200,000 light years to complete the rotation.

Showman Drowns In B.C. Lake

VERNON, B.C., Sept. 5.— Louis Soloman, 26, for 4 employee of Nicent Shows, was drowned in Kalamalka lake Wednesday when he got into difficulties while swimming from a boat. His body has not been recovered.

Soloman got into difficulties after diving a second time into the water and his companions tried to reach him, but he disappeared before they could get to him.

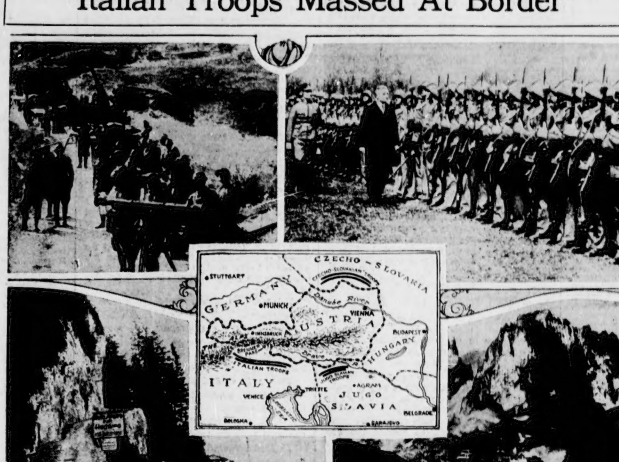

Soloman was a strong swimmer but it was believed he hurt his back in making a back-dive.

Soloman joined Crescent Shows a week ago. He had previously worked at the Regent theatre, Winnipeg, and came originally from St. Laurent, Man., where his parents live.

Italian Troops Massed At Border

While negotiations fail to make headway in bringing about a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, and war seems unavoidable, Italy is quietly massing troops on the Austrian border, it is reported. Meanwhile, Germany is playing a watchful waiting game, on another Austrian front. At the same time the Hapsburg family plans a coup which will regain them the throne. Many observers of European politics declare that Austria is the core of the present tangled situation in Europe. The layout above shows, top left, Italian troops with modern anti-aircraft artillery on the Austrian border. Top right, Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg reviewing new Austrian troops. Centre left Kieffersfelden, the border town between Germany and Austria where Nazis are concentrated. Right, the road through the Alps at Bolzano, Italy, a pass leading to the Brenner Pass, the main highway into Austria. Map shows how Austria is surrounded with enemies with Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia ready to oppose any move to invade Austria, especially by Italy.

CHATHAM M.P. BADLY HURT IN CAR CRASH

Dr. James Rutherford Is Victim During Campaign

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 5—Dr. James W. Rutherford, 60, of Chatham, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Kent since 1926, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital here last night with serious injuries following an automobile accident near Ridgetown, 20 miles east of here.

Dr. Rutherford's car was reported to have struck a bump on the highway, skidded in loose gravel, and rolled into a ditch. His companion, A. L. Thompson, Chatham, escaped injury. Mr. Thompson is acting as Dr. Rutherford's election campaign manager. They were not on organization work.

At a late hour Dr. J. S. Ferguson, partner of Dr. Rutherford, who with Dr. Marr and Dr. Gillies, attended the injured physician, issued the following bulletin:

"Dr. Rutherford seems to have suffered severe injury to the cord of his spine. He may be a local hemorrhage which may clear up, but it is difficult tonight to say how sadly he is injured. He also suffered from severe shock and considerable pain from an injury to his head.

CO-ED HAS BEATING AS HICCOUGH CURE

BERKELEY, Calif. Sept. 5—The prominent university leader seized the beautiful co-ed, mauled her when she fell to the ground, forced her to eat grass and finally choked her.

The foregoing is not the office boy's idea of how to start a thriller; it's a description of what actually happened in broad daylight on the University of California campus before a crowd of amazed students.

It was simply Ray Rhodes, prominent university activities head, demonstrating with the cooperation of Carol King, co-ed, his method of curing hiccoughs, a cure which made him the butt of many laughs when published in the Daily California, student newspaper.

Rhodes put on the unusual experiment for the benefit of a group of doubters when Miss King suddenly developed a case of hiccoughs.

Garbed in a bathing suit, she lay down and he pressed her diaphragm, made her eat some grass and then choked her.

The hiccoughs stopped. But Miss King was uncertain as to which was worse—the malady or the cure.

Stuffed Freak Causes Action

REGINA, Sept. 5.—An eight legged, two tailed dead calf is the basis for a small debt suit of $26.50 between T. J. Griffith, Regina taxidermist, and O. J. Lincoln, Parry district farmer. Griffith is suing for materials and work in mounting the animal, while Lincoln counters with claim of $100 damages for negligent work. The immature freak was mounted on a plaque and not in standing position, which makes the basis for the trouble.

Dearth Of Jobs Still Requires Constant Watch

Labor Must Provide Bulwark Against Dictator Tendencies Apparent in Some Nations.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—Legislation of last session in large part laid a sure foundation for a proper division of the profits of industry, but in the main Canada's law-making bodies, Dominion and provincial, had not yet provided any permanent solution to the problem of lack of jobs, declared P. M. Draper, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, in his review of conditions.

"In pointing out that governments have not provided the cure for the unemployment problem it is at least of equal consequence to note that private initiative first failed to offer the wage-earning opportunities," Mr. Draper continued.

TRAGEDY APPARENT

In site of improvements during the past two years, the tragedy of unemployment was still painfully apparent, the Labor president pointed out. So long as this situation continued it must demand the closest attention and no one interested in the welfare of his fellow citizens could regard the matter without grave apprehension until every worker had been placed back on a job.

Mr. Draper referred to the passing of a number of measures aimed at bettering the economic condition of Labor and the masses of the people generally, such as unemployment insurance, one day's rest in seven and the economic security bill. These, he said, embodied the principles which the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada had constantly advocated for half a century.

Canada had prided herself on her standard of conditions for the workers. Mr. Draper said the "chiseler" in business, the employer who took advantage of the hard times and the helpless position of a man without a job to reduce wages to a starvation level, was not helping business. "He is doing more to harm the capitalist system than all the Communists put together," the president said. "This kind of employer makes conditions harder for honest business, delays processes of recovery and creates discontent and unrest in the Canadian business and industrial world."

TO GO SOMEWHERE

Mr. Draper remarked: "During the last few months especially the formation of political parties in this Dominion may be properly classed amongst the most thriving industries. The masses comprising the great majority of our Canadian people appear determined to go somewhere rather than sit patiently expecting the now seven-year-old period of economic stress and upheaval to roll by. Mankind has only recently emerged from a period though he has committed some woeful blunders while doing so.

"The president described Labor's responsibility as follows: "The continuance of a depression such as the present has significance beyond the depression it creates. A depressed population, losing perspective, may embrace dictatorship as in several European countries. We have escaped the tendency so far in Canada, but labor must provide the bulwark against the growth of any such ideas here. The sure preventative is a return to conditions more nearly normal, and if labor thought can contribute in that direction it will once more justify itself as the guardian of the people's interests."

MOVIES OPEN UP TO CAROL STONE

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5——"I don't like being a movie mother."

This from Mrs. Fred Stone, wife of one of America's oldest comedians, who spent four weeks helping and watching her youngest daughter, Carol, make her debut in the movies.

Carol, who is 18 and red-haired played the lead in a picture based on the Gene Stratton-Porter story, "Laddie." Mrs. Stone cued Carol while she rehearsed her lines, saw that every hair was always in place and that her nose didn't get shiny.

"It was Fred's idea for me to stay on the set with Carol," says Mrs. Stone, who was Allene Crater on the stage before her retirement several years ago. "He thought it would help Carol to get off to a good start, and perhaps it has, although Carol is old enough to look after herself."

Carol looks capable and assured too, although she confesses she was terribly nervous during her first few days in front of the cameras and under the microphones. Carol was in a play in New York last season and for several years she has been taking dancing and dramatic lessons preparing for follow in the footsteps of both her mother and her father."

Mrs. Stone says that she definitely is in retirement now, so that no movie offer would interest her and that "Anyway, there are enough Stones in the movies," Paula, the next daughter, did a dance number in a two-reel musical, and Dorothy, who has been on the stage for several years, is returning here to be with her family and she, too, may enter the movies.

Gas - Car Probe Quits To Evade All Campaigners

OTTAWA, Sept. 5—The tariff board will postpone further hearings in the gasoline and motor car inquiries until after the general election, it was learned yesterday. The board is said to take the view politicians might use statements made in the hearings in a manner to bring that body into political controversy if the public inquiry proceeded during the campaign.

Another reason for postponement is the fact it would be impossible to complete the hearings before the election and this might react in the voting prejudicial to the interests which had not had an opportunity to present their side of the argument.

Fear Water Scarcity

KARACHI, India, Sept. 5.—Civic authorities are worried over a threatened water famine. Rains have been scanty in the Dumlotte catchment area and the water supply is dependent on subsoil streams.

BRITISH AIR SQUADRON IN SUDAN AREA

CAIRO, Sept. 5.—A British Royal Air Force squadron left Egypt last night bound for the Sudan and Kenya colony. The expedition was announced as a precautionary measure.

Sir Miles W. Lampson, British high commissioner here, informed Mohammed Tweffik Abdallah, Egyptian minister of war, that British air manoeuvres would be held in the Suez region next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ten Italian war transports have passed through the Suez canal on their way to East Africa within the last 48 hours. Three of the ships had a total of 7,000 men aboard, while seven were loaded with war supplies.

BLUE LIGHTS HELP STOP BABIES' CRIES

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Sept. 5.—The day when fathers and mothers will stop baby's crying merely by pushing an electric switch is near at hand.

At least, this is the contention of Josephine Smith, research assistant in psychology at the University of Iowa, who has studied the relation between electric lighting and a baby's crying.

Already Miss Smith has been able to reduce measurably the crying of her experimental babies by inserting blue bulbs in ordinary electric light sockets. The blue light soothes babies much more than darkness, she finds.

Boy babies cry 29 per cent of the time, and girl babies cry 10 per cent of the time, in total darkness. But under the soothing blue rays boy infants cry only 14 per cent of the time and the girls 2½ per cent, according to Miss Smith's tabulations.

This boon to weary fathers and mothers accustomed to pace the floors with lusty squalling infants was the product of more than a year's research, in which blue, red, green and white lights were tested. Only the blue proved satisfactory.

3 MEN KILLED IN CAR CRASH

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 5.—Three men were killed early today two miles west of Thedford, 30 miles northeast of here, when the automobile in which they were travelling was struck by an eastbound Canadian National railway motor train from Sarnia.

The dead are James Sheriff, 53; his son, Austin, 28, and Thos. Crawford, 55. The men left Allenford early this morning and were on route for Sarnia. Dr. G. W. Robertson, of Arkona, ordered an inquest.

Runner Wins $100 Bursary

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—For the second year in succession Phillip A. Edwards, colored Olympic runner and famed McGill University track star, has won one of two Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity bursaries for the 1935-36 session valued at $100. Edwards is entering his final year in medicine. Winner of the other bursary is Samuel M. Neaman, Montreal, who graduated from McGill in 1934 with a bachelor of science degree and will continue postgraduate work in physics.

Pity This Poor City Mendicant

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Patrolman Walter Mischo observed a tattered beggar sob bitterly when passersby ignored his outstretched hand.

Search of the man's clothes revealed $375 in currency and bank books showing deposits of $6,722.

U. S. stamp taxes were paid on more than 40,350,000 packs of playing cards during a 12-month period between 1933 and 1934.

STETTLER GIRL POISON VICTIM PROBE REVEALS

14-Year-Old Jean Currie Is Thought to Be Suicide Victim

STETTLER, Alta., Sept. 5—Poison, "probably self-administered," caused the death of Jean Currie, 14, in Stettler hospital, Aug. 26, a coroner's jury decided here Wednesday.

The government pathologist's report stated one-tenth of a grain of strychnine was found in the stomach. It was believed the strychnine was in the form used for gopher poisoning.

SUNDAY ESCAPADE

The girl left her home on horseback on the afternoon of Sunday, August 25, supposedly to look at the cattle in the pasture a mile away. When she did not return at six her parents were alarmed and began a search for her. By midnight at least 75 neighbors and friends were scouring the countryside.

FOUND IN MORNING

About 3 a.m. Monday morning she was found by two of the searchers at the home of Ernie Warhnow, in the Fenn district, about eleven miles from her home.

The two who found her in order to protect the girl and her family from gossip told her that they would back her up in a story that she had been found on the road walking home after being thrown from her horse. She was to tell that she had spent the elapsed time looking for her horse and had been lost.

The searchers returned her home at 4.30 a.m., apparently in good health. From 7 a.m. until about 8 a.m. she was left alone in the house with the exception of a younger brother and it was during this time that she supposedly took strychnine in the form of gopher poison.

DOCTOR CALLED

Dr. Kennedy, of Stettler, was called, and having no knowledge of the poisoning treated for head injuries which would have been caused by the fall from the horse. About 1 p.m. Dr. Kennedy took her to Stettler in his car. She died about 9 o'clock Monday evening.

As soon as her death was known the searchers who found her immediately notified the police of the true facts of the case.

In police court here on Saturday night Ernie Warhnow received a sentence of 6 months in Fort Saskatchewan for contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile. The coroner's court was held in camera.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5

PRESENT HELP ONLY

Premier Bennett has explained to the press what it was he said to Premier Aberhart; and, equally to the point, what he did not say.

Mr. Aberhart is to find out how much money he is likely to need to pay up the province's overdrafts and meet its obligations during the coming year. Mr. Bennett will treat him "fairly" in regard to assistance in these matters. The newly-released auditor's report for last year suggests that a good deal of assistance will be needed.

The Dominion Premier adds: "We had no discussion regarding Social Credit or policies of his Government. We were concerned with the immediate financial problems of Alberta with which the new Government must deal."

That clears the situation as bewteen the Dominion and the province. Ottawa will help in paying, or arranging for the payment, of obligations which have been already incurred, thus protecting those who have loaned money to the province and putting its finances in order as of present date. It has not undertaken to finance the experiment to which the new Provincial Government has committed itself.

UALUAL STRUCK OFF

The conciliation commission finds that neither Ethiopia nor Italy is to blame for the border skirmish at Ualual last December. It was an unofficial encounter, chargeable against neither Government, a raid of more or less ungovernable tribesmen into the territory of other tribesmen beyond the border, just one of those periodic visits which clans in that and other parts of the world have been wont to pay each other from time immemorial.

Ualual is thus struck off the list of reasons why Italy should turn its army loose to steamroller the life out of Abyssinia and annex the country—for the good of its people.

That may not change Mussolini's plans. There is still oil in the Abyssinian reservoirs, and the powers have vetoed the lease which the Emperor last week gave the Standard Oil interests, thus obligingly averting any legal or diplomatic entanglements should Il Duce grab the territory. Also, the unemployment problem in Italy is grave and growing more grave, and the need continues for diverting the attention of the Italian people from their unsolved domestic difficulties. Those are the real reasons for the projected onslaught upon Abyssinia.

PUTTING ON THE HEAT

Mayor Davison and his associate commissioners recommend that the city of Calgary default the payment of bond interest and stop paying tax-money into the sinking fund to offset the overdraft. Unless the Dominion Government will lend the city the $500,000 asked for and needed to meet expenditure for the remainder of the year.

Mayor Davison, who is to run as Mr. Bennett's candidate in East Calgary, knows how to talk to the "sound" money Premier. Nothing arouses Mr. Bennett's attention more quickly than a threat to stop paying bond interest and debts. Those subjects lie close to his centre of sensitivity. Wages may be slashed and men thrown out of employment without stirring anything deeper than his philosophic vocabulary. Such things must be, to his way of thinking, so why worry about them, regrettable as they may be. But a proposal to stop paying interest on bonds is another matter.

The wily Mayor knows how to reach the Premier where he lives and stir him to action. Calgary will get something in response to this threat. That may be safely assumed. It may get the loan it wants. Or it may get a visit from Mr. Bradshaw, who will tell its taxpayers, as he told the taxpayers of Winnipeg and Vancouver, to tighten their belts and pay up.

Elections being in sight, with Mr. Bennett running in West Calgary and the Mayor running as his supporter in East Calgary, the chances rather are that the loan, not Mr. Bradshaw, will be forthcoming.

FAST ENOUGH, SURELY

Nobody can blame Sir Malcolm Campbell for deciding it is time to quit. After setting up a record of 301 miles per hour he can afford to retire and let younger drivers risk their necks trying to get over the ground faster.

But the point is, can he quit? Sir Kingsford Smith said the lady of his choice consented to marry him on condition that he would take no more long ocean flights. But jaunting around Australia lost its thrills after a while, and he flew back to San Francisco, setting another record.

Sir Malcolm may be able to stay away from the long beaches until some one over-shoots his mark. Then the old urge will likely return, and send him back, perhaps with a new and faster Bluebird.

For there will be faster cars built, and men found to drive them. Of that the world may be sure. The old adage, "What one man has done another can do" has been changed. The motto among racers, on land and sea and in the air is that what one man has done another can do faster. There is no want of ingenuity or money to build faster machines, nor of daring men to drive however fast machines may be built.

These who go abroad on the highways or on some of the non-policed streets of the city may wonder why on earth anybody should want to go faster than some of the cars that whiz by them. To most mortals that is a mystery, as it is a mystery what good purpose can be served by making cars to go faster. But the fact is certain. The world, or a good part of it, is "speed-crazed," and there is no sign of the fever subsiding.

Poems That Live

"I AM THE WIND"

I am the wind that wavers,
You are the certain land;
I am the shadow that passes
Over the sand.

I am the leaf that quivers,
You the unshaken tree;
You are the stars that are steadfast,
I am the sea.

You are the light eternal.
Like a torch I shall die . . .
You are the surge of deep music,
I—but a cry!

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

This date, September 5, is the date above all others that will abide in my memory while life lasts. It is the birth-date of my departed mother.

I'm not strong on dates. I usually forget my own birthday till it is several days past. I can't recall the date of my marriage—though that doesn't matter now. About the only dates in history I am sure of are the year 1066 when William the Conqueror and beer came to England, and April 23, St. George's Day, when Shakespeare was born. But September 5th has been a treasured date since ever I can remember.

J. S. Cowper

There's only one other date that will engrave itself as deeply on the tablets of my memory. That will be the date on which I shall start to draw my $25 a month—or it it $75 a month now?—basic dividends.

This week, for Edmonton folk, is a week of remembrance. It is the week chosen by the Citizens' Cenotaph Committee for their appeal for funds for a permanent memorial to the 3000 men of Edmonton who fell in the Great War.

Because it is desired that it should be a citizens' memorial, small as well as large donations are sought. The committee, of which Mr. A. E. Nightingale is chairman, wants the memorial to be the tribute of the many.

Don't delay sending in your donation. If you do not know the address of any of the committee, you can forward it directly to the treasurer, Mr. Campbell Fraser, manager of the Dominion bank, Jasper avenue. The granite shaft to be erected will withstand the ravages of centuries, being alike a tribute to the valiant dead and a reminder of the tragedy and the cost of war.

Signs of Progress!

The official organ of the Alberta Douglas Social Credit movement in Alberta has a top line on the front page of its August issue, which reads, "UNEMPLOYMENT IS A SIGN OF PROGRESS."

Well, you can't say that Alberta is not a progressive province, after reading that.

Returning from the election fight at Edson, I finished reading in the train our own Prof. W. G. Hardy's historical romance, "Father Abraham." It's the story of the patriarch Abraham and his wife, the Princess Sarah. Don't read it as Sunday school literature. It's anything but that. You'll hear more about "Father Abraham" later on. Quite likely you'll see a mild version of it on the screen. Prof. Hardy has clothed the bones of the Genesis story with the throbbing flesh and passions of Arabian desert life. It is a story of tumult, of keen hates and jealousies, even of murder and rape. Only at the end of his days, when his passions had cooled and his pride had been purged, does the patriarch find peace. The book ends with the scene when Sarah is buried in the cave Machpelah before Mamre, and Abraham himself goes to join her in spirit.

Now comes word of the discovery of the necropolis of Machpelah, near the ancient city of Mizpah, seven miles north of Jerusalem, by an expedition of the Pacific School of Religion.

Rev. W. F. Bade, director of the Tell-el-Nasbeh expedition, which made the discovery cables under date of August 27, saying:

"Evidence of at least sixty burials was found. Many of the remains are of women. Some of the bones may be those of Sarah, bronze bracelets being found on the forearms and ankles.

"The cave had been the burial place of thousands before the Israelites of Mizpah settled there, for under the deposits around the entrance were found fragments of early bronze age pottery."

Thus through the imagination of the novelist-student and the research of the archeologist does the mind of man span the centuries and link up the past and the present.

A warning to credulous people against the danger of swallowing too readily the fervid pleas and forthright assurances given over the radio by eloquent announcers about the merits of patent medicines of which they know nothing.

Sales of worthless or dangerous nostrums by radio representations were made the subject of exposure at a recent National Conference on Education by Dr. Arthur J. Cramp, representing the American Medical Association. Twenty-one U.S. radio stations have been cited to appear before the (U.S.) Federal Communications Commission to show cause why their licenses should not be cancelled for broadcasting a "reducing" medicine containing a notoriously dangerous drug.

One of the patent medicines named by Dr. Cramp is "Alka-Seltzer" which is advertised as an "anti-acid." The essential drug in it is aspirin. Dr. Cramp said that a person following the directions and taking 16 tablets a day would consume over 70 grains of aspirin and nearly one grain of salicylic acid, in addition to the citric acid and baking soda they contain.

"Ex-Lax," "Marmola," "Peruna," "Crazy Crystals" were among the drugs he dealt with. Of the last-named he said that action had been taken in sixteen cases; "chiefly because the water contained filthy, decomposed and putrid substances." He added:

"From the various published reports of the Crazy Water concern itself it is admitted that the chief ingredient is sodium sulphate, commonly known as Glauber's salt, or the 'horse salts' of the veterinarian.

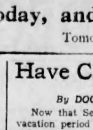

"Salts or saline cathartics are among the most abused medicaments used by the public. They should be classed among habit-forming drugs, for there is no question that they are responsible for a large proportion of cases of cathartic habit."

The doctor didn't comment on the hymn-singing that was a feature of the Crazy Crystal program, so we don't know whether he thinks it was meant as sucker bait.

Have Child Examined

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Now that September is here, the summer vacation period is practically over and many children will shortly be returning to school. I suggest that before school opens, the best thing you can do for your child is to have an examination made. In this way, any defects which might interfere with his school work can be remedied and on the opening day of school your child will be as fit as possible.

Dr. F. McCoy

It is certainly true that defects comparatively slight in themselves may be sufficient to retard the child in school. As an illustration, consider the child with a visual defect which keeps him from seeing plainly. He may have difficulty in reading or in learning to spell because the words blur in front of him, or, if he is near-sighted, he may be unable to see what is written on the blackboard some distance away. The child with a hearing defect is likewise handicapped. An examination of the child will readily disclose any defects of the eyes or ears and with proper attention, the child will be greatly helped in overcoming his difficulty.

As I have said, it is important that you parent know the physical condition of their children. You should know if your child's weight is normal or if he requires special attention to diet because he is underweight. If the child complains of being tired, or if he appears to be easily irritated, have him examined. Very often a physical abnormality will explain such symptoms.

Now is a splendid time to take the child to the dentist and have the teeth looked over. If any small cavities have formed, have these filled before the child goes back to school. Remember, after he once starts to school, it will be difficult to find a convenient time for him to visit the dentist and have the necessary work done.

In considering the welfare of your child, give some attention to his feet. If you are buying new school shoes, make sure that these shoes are correctly fitted. Any foot trouble such as fallen arches should receive corrective treatment. Flat feet are an outstanding example of a defect which may be overcome by exercise, if persistent. The child must be taught to exercise the muscles of the foot and this must be done daily.

As soon as possible, have your child examined and then begin immediately to remedy any handicaps found in the examination. Do not be content until your child's physical condition parallels that of a child the same age in the peak of good health.

If the child is of a slender build with a relatively undeveloped chest, and if your doctor informs you that the child has a tendency toward tuberculosis, then study how to build up a better chest for him so that you prevent the possibility of tuberculosis. Supervise his hours of rest and sleep, watch his diet, get him outdoors more and above all, see that he learns to take those breathing exercises which will broaden the chest and provide him with a better future outlook. If the examination discloses a slight adenoid growth, then study how to care for the child so that you help him to outgrow this trouble, if there is any opportunity of such an accomplishment. History is full of records of thin, sickly children who grew up to be physically powerful men as the result of early care. Your child's health is certainly his most important possession. Guard that health in every way possible and have the child examined at least once each year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mrs. Jack N. writes: "What are some of the symptoms of neuritis, and what is the cause?"

ANSWER—The chief symptom of neuritis is pain, which may be of a sharp, boring character, and is frequently intense at night. The painful sensation is generally made worse by movement. Neuritis refers to an inflammation of the nerves, and the nerves of the arms are affected more often than those of other parts of the body. Simple neuritis refers to neuritis localized in one nerve, while multiple neuritis means that several nerves are affected. Sciatic is simply a neuritis occurring in the large sciatic nerve. The principal cause of neuritis is a systemic toxemia. If you desire further information on neuritis, I suggest that you send for my article on the subject, enclosing ten cents and one large, self-addressed envelope, and the article on Neuritis will be forwarded as soon as possible.

Dr. Frank McCoy's great book, "The Fast Way to Health," gives you the mechanics of health in plain, easily understandable language.

If it is desired to communicate direct with Dr McCoy, readers are requested to address communication direct to Dr. Frank McCoy, 1439 South Ardmore Ave., Los Angeles, California, and replies will be mailed direct from that address.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

On September 6 it will be an error to permit yourself to acquire a grouch. There is every indication that if you will maintain the right mental outlook on life and things in general, this day will be free of mental stress or strain. Do not over-tax your physical strength. Married and engaged couples, and those fascinated by the revelation of what love actually means, can further their interests this day, if they practice consideration in both actions and words.

If a woman and September 6 is your birthday, do not be afraid to be original in thought, deed and self-expression. It may pay you to seek new ideas. Guard against a sudden enthusiasm over some subject, sweeping you off your feet. Money may come to you from some unexpected source. Marriage should fulfil your expectations, bringing realization of some of your sweetest dreams.

The child born on September 6 will probably, when it passes through adolescence, give evidence of a physical and mental normality.

If a man and September 6 is your natal day, if you will use progressive methods, combined with energetic efforts you should meet with an abundance of success.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

"Please look dear! Blue Girl is winning—the horse daddy bought for you."

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1825, 110 years ago, the business men of Niagara took the first concerted action to make the St. Lawrence the great waterway it is today. The merchants of Montreal, headed by John Richardson, one of the founders of the Bank of Montreal, had begun the construction of the Lachine canal, along much the same route as that used by Father Dollier deCasson a century before; but up to the time of the Niagara meeting no attempt had been made, or the idea even suggested, of building canals to overcome the rapids in the upper river.

That is what makes this meeting of old Niagara so historically important. Hon. Thomas Clark presided at the meeting at the Niagara hotel and William Hamilton Merritt was appointed secretary. After long debate it was resolved: "That this meeting, having long witnessed the vexation, delay and heavy expense attending the navigation of the St. Lawrence between Montreal and Prescott and being satisfied that a perfect canal navigation can be made between those places at a reasonable expense compared with the object of the undertaking, do recommend a subscription be opened immediately in both provinces for the purpose of employing a scientific and practical engineer or engineers to explore and make out an estimate of constructing a canal along the banks of the St. Lawrence, in order that the same may be laid before the legislatures of the two provinces."

These Niagara men were of wide vision. They saw that the noble St. Lawrence was not placed there by the Great Maker for mere ornament, but would eventually become tribute to the powers of clever men and be the broad pathway to bear the golden products of the great west to the toilers of Europe. Soon after this meeting Messrs. Clowes and Rykert were sent down to make a survey of the river banks with a view to building a canal to overcome the rapids. Thus Niagara can well be called the cradle of our canals and that subscription collected at that meeting be regarded as the very first expenditure upon what has developed into our present wonderful St. Lawrence waterway.

The Big Bend Highway

(From Crag and Canyon, Banff.)

Messrs. R. M. Underwood and E. S. Duncan made a trip over a portion of the eastern leg of the Big Bend highway project last week end, leaving on Friday returning on Sunday.

The work on this project is being pushed ahead as rapidly as possible. There are some 350 men on the eastern leg of the work under Engineer Wilkins. The men have been handicapped somewhat owing to wet weather during the summer but despite this handicap the work has been pushed steadily ahead. The advance gang on the eastern end of the road reached Boat Encampment at Canoe river last week. This is the point where it will be necessary to build a large bridge across the Columbia river, the steel for which is expected to arrive at Donald within the next two or three weeks. A big platform to accommodate this steel was just being finished up when the visitors were there.

Messrs. Underwood and Duncan travelled over the highway to a camp located on Disappearing Creek, sixty-five miles from the Donald. The road is in excellent condition to within a few miles of the turning point, and this portion is now receiving the top dressing of gravel.

Approximately half way along Kinbasket Lake Mount Trident looms into view in the Selkirks. Surrounded by a big glacier it rears its head into the clouds at an elevation of over ten thousand feet, over eight thousand feet higher than the roadway at this point. It is an impressive sight.

A bit farther along the road is another beautiful sight, where three waterfalls are coming down the mountain side from a big glacier above. Earlier in the season, it was stated, there are six such falls. These streams of water all come from one pocket near the base of the rock-faced mountain.

One of the big tasks facing the construction gang during the later fall months is to move the heavy steel for the bridge at Canoe river. The bridge site is some eighty miles from Donald. It is planned that when sufficient snow comes so that sleighs can be used this steel will be hauled by using caterpillar tractors for power. It is planned to work on the bridge during the winter month so that the gangs can push onward from the top end toward Revelstoke when they have the eastern leg completed.

When the highway will be open for traffic is still definitely set. The Dominion Highways Department, under which the road is being built, states that over the western leg, is pushing construction to the limit.

A glimpse into the future, some two or three years hence, when the road is completed and traffic moving fast and west, must convince the most skeptical that Banff will have heavy traffic passing through which will be of big benefit to the town, to the province and to the Dominion. Where we now have one, the authorities estimate that we will have ten.

JAPAN SELLS TO BUY

Raw cotton is Japan's main import. It comes largely from the United States and India. Other imports are more diversified. They include iron, ore, coal, wool, lumber, beans and bean cake, wheat, oil, rice and some machinery.

Japan must have these imports. On them are based industrialization and the welfare of her people. She is compelled to pay for them with raw silk, cotton goods and a wide range of light manufactures.

This great dependence upon the export of two products, raw silk and cotton goods, is an important characteristic of Japan's trade. On the one hand, she is threatened with the partial substitution of rayon for silk, on the other, by fierce competition in contracting markets. But she must sell to buy. She must buy. Is "Japanese competition" unnatural? Or should we describe it as inevitable?—Bank of Nova Scotia.

Sunshine Shafts

A young woman who seemed to be having her first experience in a bank approached the window of a paying teller and gave him a large check which she wanted to cash.

"How do you wish the money?" the teller inquired.

"Oh," replied the young woman, in some confusion, "I'll just hold out my hand and you can put the money in it."

A young lady from Paris was visiting New York, and one day she wanted to buy an eponge pour le bain—a bath sponge—and she inquired of her hostess how she should ask for it in the shop.

"Ask" her hostess said, "for a big bath sponge to take home with you."

So the young lady visited a fashionable drug store and walked up to a good looking young salesman, and smiled prettily and said:

"Eef you please, will you kindly take me home and geeve me a beeg sponge bath!"

Making An End Of Poverty

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

There is always a basic truth underlying political and financial convulsions; and in the present series of agitators on the North American continent the basic truth is that no educated nation will live under a condition of casual and haphazard wealth and poverty—plenty in few homes, and destitution in many.

Ambassador Geddes when representing Britain at Washington was asked what would be the permanent effect of the World war. He said that men would never again be content to spend a life laboring for wages sufficient only for daily bread, leaving old age to the charity of relatives or donations from the state.

Had our dollar moguls been gifted with sense enough to get the purport and effect of this truth, and to realize that to keep every individual solvent and occupied along lines giving opportunity for old age independence, is to keep the nation safe and to make fortunes secure—and that there is no other way to do it—we would not be fighting the political whirlpools which are calling for the most stupendous restoration expenditures of which history has record. It is restoration or anarchy; and no government will count the cost of levelling-up to a restoration basis as compared with the destruction inevitable once the continent should fall into anarchy. The bigger the fortune the greater will be the restoration contribution.

Nothing of the kind would have been necessary had the money control decided at the time of the Armistice to make an end of poverty. One-half of the money now being spent for restoration would have done it. A sum of ten billion dollars set aside in 1918 as a basic support for a social service law, providing unemployment insurance, sickness protection and old-age pensions on a contributory basis, taking into benefits both city dwellers and the farming classes would have been sufficient to instal a system in both the United States and Canada which would have removed the acute effects of poverty, given every individual a real interest in the financial success of the country, and ended the fight between class and rank and file.

In 1918 anyone who suggested that ten billion dollars be set aside for such a purpose would have been committed to suitable care and observation; but in 1935 the United States is spending over ten billion dollars for restoration alone, so as to get into a position from which a social service system can be operated; and Canada is in the throes of a general election contest in which every financial and economic theory has field for elocution.

There must be restoration first; then a drastic reform of living conditions and insurance of an adequate standard of living for everyone; with the final goal effecting the abolition of poverty. Any other path leads to anarchy.

Liberal Candidates Broadcast Warning To Western Voters

First of a series of radio broadcasts dealing with Federal issues, under auspices of the Alberta Liberal candidates, was given Wednesday evening over a CJCA hookup, by George P. Smith, former Alberta cabinet minister and a present candidate. "The New Danger Confronting Canada" was his subject, text of the speech, as follows:

"The political situation in Canada has been an ever-changing one in recent months and it appears probable that the most astonishing changes of all may still lie ahead. The confusion in the public mind, due to the multiplicity of new and little-understood parties, may easily result in a tragic blunder being made on Election Day and it is therefore, necessary for all voters to inform themselves as fully as possible upon the conditions surrounding the coming Federal election.

"Glancing first at our own province—a new party and a new government have just come into being, elected upon policies of far-reaching change and experiment. There is no doubt that the general attitude will be that every opportunity should be given to this new government to work out its plans for the improvement of the conditions under which we live. Their proposed entry into the Federal field, however, is fraught with danger both to the plans which they have at heart and to the future of progressive government in Canada as a whole. This will become apparent in my later remarks.

STEVENS IS TORY

"I am sure that all Albertans were pleased when the Aberhart forces decided not to unite with Mr. Stevens. Mr. Stevens is an out and out Tory and one of the strongest high tariff advocates in Canada. He was joint architect with Mr. Bennett of the extreme Canada First Tariff and still supports it; he was an ardent supporter of a privately owned Central Bank only a few months ago; he was a member of the last three Tory governments and left the last one only when it was sinking, indeed, only when he was pushed overboard. Alberta will not support Toryism and extreme tariff protection if she knows it. True, we have been represented by Tories at Ottawa for many years, but they were in disguise. There is no disguise in the Toryism of H. H. Stevens. He still hopes to lead the Tory party. Toryism has its place in history and its work to do but few people believe that Tory policies can do anything for Western Canada and, if Alberta votes for further strangling of trade for the benefit of Eastern manufacturers, then, Heaven help this country.

BIG SHOTS BUSY

"There is, however, a much more difficult problem to be dealt with. The strongest and most dangerous forces in Canada today, the big business interests headed by the wealthy magnates commonly referred to as the "Big Shots of St. James Street", are exhausting every effort to bring about confusion following the approaching election. The plan is to split up the vote, thus making it impossible for any party to govern alone and, in that way, to force the creation of a National or Union government to do things that no single party would dare to do. Under the direction of its moneyed masters this government would scrap the Canadian National Railways, restore railway monopoly, block all monetary reform and perpetuate the day of high tariffs and special privilege for bankers, manufacturers and millionaires. They have formed a league called the "League for National Government" in Toronto and Montreal. Their spokesman, Mr. Basil B. Campbell, was in Calgary for the provincial elections and, from there, he sent out a wire that the League would not nominate its own candidates. Just so! Why should they? If they can encourage Social Credit candidates, Stevens candidates, C.C.F. candidates, Bennett candidates and various others, would that not create the very condition they desire? The West was fooled into supporting the last Union government in 1917 and surely we have not forgotten what they did to us! Make no mistake, the battle of the West from this moment is against this proposed union government dominated by the dangerous interests that would further enslave us.

LEAGUE ACTIVITY

"The leader of the Liberal party, the Right Honorable Mackenzie King, speaking in St. John, New Brunswick, last night made reference to the great activity of the League for National government and predicted that, when Mr. Bennett speaks within the next few days, we are very likely to hear from him as for a National government. It will be an appeal to patriotism, an appeal to the people to put country before party and to return a National government with Mr. Bennett at its head. Whether Mr. King's forecast comes true or not there is not the slightest doubt that these are the plans that have been secretly under way for a long time and they are being promoted by the big business interests that have become alarmed as to their own security and that have unlimited financial and other means of attaining their purpose. If such a government were formed it would be a continuation of the Bennett government of the past five years with the same policies and the same uncertainty and unrest.

DUTY OF WEST

"The West should face the issue squarely. The Liberal party is the only party that can score a clear victory. Surely then our duty is to do our part to make that party strong enough to defy the Tory Senate and the Big Interests, to secure amendments to the Constitution, public ownership of the Central Bank, and all the other essential steps to recovery! The path of our new government in Alberta would be greatly made easy by a general improvement in business, and history makes clear that Canada has enjoyed periods of general prosperity only under Liberal policies. Would it not then be suicidal for Alberta to weaken the hand of the expected Liberal government just when the country is filled with new hope? The West has not always acted wisely. In 1930 we sent 30 Tory members to Ottawa and, without these, the Bennett government could never have been formed. Never since 1911—24 years ago—have we supported the Liberal party, and all these years we have heard interested third parties slander the Liberal party until many actually believe the slanders. Regardless of what may be said the fact remains that the two golden eras of Canadian history were from 1896 to 1911 under Sir Wilfrid Laurier and from 1922 to 1930 under Mackenzie King. The Liberal party today is prepared to insist upon the national ownership of the Central Bank which is the most essential step in any plan of monetary reform; they are prepared to go to the very heart of the evils of big business by grappling with the problems of interlocking directorates—watered stock and fraudulent bond issues; they will secure the amendments to the British North America Act that will open the door for reforms that have been delayed for a generation; they will raise the tariff walls back to 1930 levels at once and from that point work for progressively lower levels; by reducing tariffs and accepting imports from other countries they will regain our markets for wheat and all other products and thus will be in a position to restore employment to our people.

"In conclusion may I warn you once more not to under-estimate the power of the big interests that know only too well when and how to seize control. Remember their power when they smashed Reciprocity in 1911; remember it again when they set up Union government in 1917, and do not be caught napping in 1935 when so much depends on electing a strong government that can do the work that we want done. In all sincerity I urge that Alberta should vote Liberal."

It was Sporri's third winner of the day, and he piloted Shasta Dream home first in the next race to set a season's record with four winners in one day.

Favorites generally found the going good but Vait Meter gave the punters a small surprise by winning the fourth event and paying $11.80 for a win ticket, best price of the day.

Jap Trade Pact Near-Impossible Says Report

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—A government statement will be issued today covering the outcome of long negotiations over the trade impasse reached between Canada and Japan as a result of application of prohibitives surtaxes on leading commodities in both countries.

Since the Japanese government applied a 50-per cent surtax against the chief Canadian imports in that country, as protest against the currency dump duly, followed immediately by similar Canadian surtax on Japanese imports, there have been many diplomatic exchanges in an effort to reach a compromise.

Sokomatsu Kato, Japanese minister to Canada, has had frequent conferences with the prime minister and spent considerable time with Mr. Bennett yesterday. At the close of his conversations with Mr. Kato the prime minister said he would issue a statement some time today.

It is understood efforts to reach a compromise have been found extremely difficult if not impossible.

Canada's Foremost Women Golfer, 16 Years Champion, Plays For The Fun Of It

By LOTTA C. DEMPSEY

One of the things Ada MacKenzie doesn't need to worry her well-balanced head about is the old sporting maxim "They never come back." Although it is 16 years since Canada's ace woman golfer won the Canadian Ladies' open golf championship, she has never "gone away." Not that the keen and sociable sportswoman from Toronto has been Canadian champion for all that time; but if the winning of the open championship in 1926, 27, 29, 30 and 33, and the open four times, with provincial and American innings sprinkled generously in between, isn't pretty definitely tops, then Ada MacKenzie might as well take up tuna fishing.

When it is considered that the great Bobby Jones is the only golfer who ever won the United States open for three years in succession, and that of all sports, golf is one of inconsistency as to championships, it appears that Miss MacKenzie has achieved something pretty colossal. Besides, if you look over the golf records of the last sixteen years, you will find Ada Mackenzie's name Among Those Present, practically always as runner-up where she hasn't come off first.

But who doesn't know the brilliant record of this world-famous player? The question wasn't, "What kind of a golfer is Ada MacKenzie" when the writer met her at Jasper Park Lodge, where she is playing in the Totem Pole tournament this week. It was 'What kind of a sport is Ada MacKenzie?" Champion and sportsman aren't always synonymous terms, and the question of what years of nerve steeling, mind-and-muscle co-ordination and gruelling concentration on the links would do to the feminine temperament, is an interesting one. Ada MacKenzie answered it all in one sentence.

"But golf is only my hobby," she said, with that frank and friendly smile which drives home as unwaveringly as those famous putting shots to the green of hers. "When the day comes that I don't get a lot of fun out of it, I'll stop playing."

It's true, too. The champion arrived at Jasper amid a flurry of excitement on the part of seasoned p'ayers, men and women, from Canada, the United States and abroad. Her sure, even game is known from Scotland to Bermuda, and on all the most famed golf courses of the United States and Canada. She walked through the crowds friendly, gracious, unassuming. Certainly she was the champion, but not by any gesture or pose. It was with a direct simplicity that she greeted friends and made her way to the tee, for the first time, the famous Jasper Park course.

You and you and you and you might play over the rolling greens in their jewel-like setting and never despair about the mounting score. But when Ada MacKenzie goes into the rough, its news. The gallery gasped. She smiled pleasantly and looked around. "How can I keep my eye on the ball with all this gorgeousness around?" was her only comment.

At that she went around in 79, just brushing the all-time women's record of 77. On the following day she did a 77, and by the end of the week she had definitely shattered existing records completely.

CHAMPIONS ARE BORN

Champions are born, not made, she didn't say it in so many words, but she believes that training and practice will do the trick up to a point. There is a matter of temperament.

There is nothing like competition play to put the finishing touches on one's golf. She advises all enthusiasts to play in tournaments, whenever possible. Nothing else offers the same stimulus. The secret of her continuously top-notch game? She suggests that its a question of trying to be just a little consistently better in every phase of the game. Ada MacKenzie is noted for her steady, nerveless playing. Her game seldom varies. She also admits that for every tournament game she is excited and keenly enthusiastic, underneath her apparent calm.

She doesn't believe one plays really good golf without that. It's like the first night excitement that stays with an actor so long as he remains first rank. When that goes, Miss MacKenzie doesn't think she'll be playing championship golf.

There isn't any reason why women shouldn't be as good golfers as men, except where the strength required in driving. Chiefly, they don't have enough opportunity to play, and they fuss too much over little things.

Certainly golf is the most sociable game in the world, and has no age limit. Because women are not allowed to play on so many courses on Saturdays and Sundays, Miss MacKenzie considered ten years ago the Ladies' Golf and Tennis Club of Toronto, which now has a membership of approximately 500. The feminine members enjoy bringing their husbands and fiances to play as their guests.

That was an exciting game in 1919 when Ada MacKenzie won her first national championship, playing to 19 holes against Kate Robertson on the Beaconsfield course. But there have been many just as thrilling since. Probably the highlight game in her career was one in which Miss MacKenzie played Glenna Colett Vare on the St. Louis course in the American National in 1929. Both were playing in the seventies, and Miss MacKenzie was two down on the 14th hole when there was a cloud burst. They played on through rain and flashing lightning and roaring thunder, never taking their minds off the game for a moment. Both were playing top-notch golf, and in the 18th hole Mrs. Vare won. It is characteristic of Miss MacKenzie that she would describe a game in which she herself was loser.

She speaks enthusiastically of the 18-yearold Patty Berg who has been playing such spectacular golf at the American National in Minneapolis, where she just defeated Miss MacKenzie. "She's too young and completely nerveless to be afraid and know what the dangers are" says Miss MacKenzie smiling. "She has learned good golf, she's keen and sure and she hasn't started to think about the game yet. She simply knocks them straight ahead, and her putting is little short of miraculous."

HAS A BUSINESS

Ada MacKenzie protests that she doesn't take her golf seriously and you believe it. She only plays about twice a week, at her club, because she is so busy as manager of her little sporting goods shop in Toronto.

In the winter she does a lot of fancy skating and she loves camping and fishing, spending many summer week-ends at beautiful Muskoka. When golf ceases to become a hobby she'll stop that is why she will never turn professional. She says it would take all the fun out of the game. She grew up in a sporting atmosphere, both her mother and father having been excellent golfers, riders, tennis players, etc. She herself is interested in all sports. By the way, her most unusual shot was out of a tree once. They boosted her up to make it.

She is enthusiastic about the splendid training the youngsters are getting, and feels there is plenty of championship material coming up. The Canadian championship is becoming really national now that each province is sending teams to compete. Formerly, it was not actually representative. She points with pride to the fact that Joyce Wethered, with whom she will play an exhibition game in Vancouver Friday, beat Sandy Somerville the other day. Its like her to be thrilled at that.

She's going to keep right on playing golf as long as she enjoys it. Besides, she smiles, you've got to give the youngsters a chance to beat you. That's part of the fun they get.

She's pretty likely to be playing championship golf for a long time.

MISS ADA MacKENZIE.

Canada's ace woman golfer, who is at present playing in the Totem Pole golf tournament at Jasper Park Lodge, and will compete in the Canadian women's open championships at Vancouver, will be in Edmonton Wednesday, September 25, en-route to her home in Toronto. Mrs. T. Sawyer is exhibition golfer at Mayfair Golf and Country club. Also in Edmonton on that date for exhibition games will be members of the Ontario women's team and the Quebec women's team, who will be returning from the championship games in Vancouver. A dinner and luncheon will probably be among social affairs arranged.

THREE HILLS, Sept. 5.—A wedding of interest at Three Hills took place in the church Monday afternoon at three o'clock when Helen Corinne, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Colburn of Three Hills, became the bride of Robert W. Parker, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker of Drumheller. Rev. E. B. Bundage officiated The bride was lovely as she entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Marion Gordon, L.R.S.M. She was gowned in white satin, fashioned on long, graceful lines with lace sleeves and slightly rowel length train. She wore the conventional veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Doris Colburn and Miss Alice Parker, sisters of the bride and bridegroom, were frocked alone in pale yellow and peach with hats and slippers to match and carried bouquets of sweet peas. Miss Jean Sawdon was the dainty little flower girl in a frock of pale green organdie. Little Junior Burrell was the ring bearer. The bride's mother was gowned in navy silk crepe ensemble with white accessories. Mrs. Parker wore an outfit of beige and brown hat to match. Mr. Arnold Brunz acted as groomsman.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlors. Mrs. J. E. McFee, Mrs. T. Sawdon, Mrs. A. E. Patten and Mrs. T. Kelly poured tea. Miss Mabel Nortan and Miss Leota Kalbfleisch were in charge.

Study In Old Ivory

Rare old lace set in medallions trim train and sleeves of chiffon negligee in old ivory shade worn by Anita Louise of the screen.

Luxury is the keynote of the new season, say the Paris Courtiers. What could be more glamorous than the new negligees, which have an old-world charm about them? Rare old laces, chiffons in the palest of tints and flowing lines make such feminine apparel as this very lovely indeed. Hostess gowns and negligees take a large place in the wardrobe of the smart woman this year.

What's What

Question—I am invited to an out-of-town party over September 9 and I would like to know if I could still wear summer clothing. I shall remain a week with other friends nearby, not returning to the city until the middle of September. Also, we intend to go to a dance on Saturday, September 14. Can I wear this season's outfit? Would a mousseline de soi dress be appropriate for that too summerish. Also, could I take a white flannel coat? Could you also tell me about the shoes one should wear for fall and summer clothes? What is the duration of the season for gentlemen to wear white flannels?

ESTELLE.

Answer—the summer season does not end until the Autumnal equinox, September 22. Therefore, summer clothes for both men and women may be worn until that date. Indeed in mid latitudes, people dress lightly until mid-October, except for ceremonial occasions, such as formal weddings.

Question—Should a girl stand up when a man of 50 is introduced to her? Should she stand when introduced to an older woman?

ROSALIND.

Answer—A middle-aged man is not old enough to require this gesture of respect from a girl. She should stand only when she is introduced to older women or when quite an elderly man is presented. Of course, when she is hostess or cohostess at an entertainment, it is her duty to stand when she greets the young guests and the old.

the social round . . .

BARRON ALAIN DE CATERS, managing editor of "Miroir du Monde," a Paris magazine with a circulation of 150,000 was explaining the difference in temperament between the French and the English. "You see," he said, with charming inflection "The English do not discuss the things which are deepest in their hearts; they are stolid. But we laugh at what we feel most deeply; we are facetious."

We had been aware, before that, of certain basic differences in make-up between the two races. For instance, someone was describing to us the other day an amusing scene she had witnessed in the heart of Paris.

There was a definite traffic jam and a traffic jam in Paris is like nothing else in the world. Its confusing. It's decidedly voluable, and its pretty tangled as well. A French policeman rushed from his cubby beat to the centre of the piled up, honking automobiles. He looked this way and that, gave the situation some thought, and finally throwing up both hands in despair, walked back to his corner. They had got themselves into it, and they could get out as best they might, his manner undoubtedly suggested.

Could you imagine that happening in London? No doubt the London bobby is safe-guarded by what someone has called the English passion for "flying into a calm."

Then there was the case of the pretty young American girl who was a bank clerk in Paris. She had not yet mastered the intricacies of the French tongue and it was with some difficulty that she tried to explain to the suspicious conductor in the first-class compartment of a tram that she had apparently lost her ticket stub and had given him an old one entirely by mistake.

Her repeated "C'est extraordinaire" appeared to have anything but a soothing effect and the conductor took her off at the next station and over to a French policeman. Together they discussed the case and refusing to listen to her plea that she was late for her office, and would gladly pay twice the required fare, walked together with her to a police station. This required about fifteen minutes in the Paris street. Once there, they telephoned her bank, identified her and eventually allowed her to go.

The French, as we may have remarked before, are an interesting race.

SANCTUARY

Clifford Dyment in Poetry

Not far beyond the town wild flowers grow
In the delicate shooting grass, the blades
Like swords pacific turning from the sun
Not watchful, hostile, flowers' champions.
The wind embraces themes at leisure here.
And birds sing in the sun yet every hour
A train roars through the cutting, shakes the air.
In haste, gives tongue like hound on scent of prey.
Man plans his own retreat, builds sanctuary
Not seen by eyes within the alien walls.
Where he can rerawl his thought in private log.
And exercise his secret idiom.

Though road drill give no peace, and omnibus
Bullies a passage through congested ways. . . .

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

Course Dotty was embarrassed. She exclaimed, "Oh, kindly pardon me. I meant to lasso that small steer, but it raced right away.

"The next time, I'm sure I'll improve. Get me a steer that will not move. Twill make the task real easy, if in one spot it will stay."

The cowboy who had been roped said, "Why, when your rope is smile when she, too, roped a racing beast and flopped it to the ground.

She promptly helped it to its feet, as someone shouted, "That was neat. From now on, when you have that rope, I won't feel safe and sound."

A bucking bronco then was brought before the bunch. "I think any creamed fish, meat, or full-flavored vegetable. Creamed sweetbreads and mushrooms, maybe, for party luncheon. Or filled with creamed cauliflower or creamed onions, this makes an excellent family luncheon, served with, say, an egg salad.

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

dropped o'er my head, it really took me by surprise, but it is quite all right.

"You need a bit of practice, miss, and then you won't pull tricks like this. I guess I should have followed that small steer right out of sight.

"Now I am going to show you how to make sure of your catch, right now. Here comes another steer. I'll catch him by the left hind leg."

And then he gave the rope a fling and promptly did that very thing. "Hurray for you," wee Dotty cried. "That was a perfect peg."

And then she practiced for a while and soon her face spread in you ought to try and ride him, Duncy," said a cowboy, with a grin. "If you are game, hang on real tight. He'll shake you, lad, with all his might. Why, when you hop off the ground, you won't know where you've been."

"Aw, I'm not scared," wee Duncy roared. "Come on, someone help me aboard." A cowboy put him on the bronc and started yelling, "Yip."

This scared the beast. It jumped around. Poor Duncy hung on tight, and frowned. Then, as he bounced up high, he thought that to the ground he'd slip.

(Scouty springs a surprise on everybody in the next story.)

Rice, Noodles Good Potatoes Substitute

By MARY E. DAGUE

For years potatoes were misunderstood. Everybody, including the scientists, talked about the calories they added and blamed them for making people fat, forgetting all about their valuable minerals.

The minerals are why it's not so easy to find satisfactory potato substitutes. Remember, too, that the tendency to serve macaroni or noodles in a rich sauce leads to the addition of many more calories than simply-cooked potatoes.

Sister Mary

When the meat course is light a good dish of macaroni, spaghetti, rice or noodles will help the meal. Noodle ring with its eggs and milk adds many protein calories. Macaroni in a tomato and cheese sauce does its share in the same direction.

PLAIN RICE WITH HEARTIER MEAL

Plain cooked rice is suitable to serve with a heartier meat meal. You know that unless rice is cooked in milk or richly dressed with butter, three-fourths of a cup is only a hundred calories.

Tomatoes are traditional with macaroni and spaghetti, but the combination of macaroni and onions is unusual and delicious. Hearthy, too. Parboil the macaroni as usual. Then arrange sliced onions layer for layer with the macaroni (or spaghetti) in a well-buttered baking dish. A thin white sauce is poured over to cover the mixture and the dish is baked 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

Noodle ring is good filled with any creamed fish, meat, or vegetable. Cream sauce, tomato sauce, or creamed onions, this makes an excellent family luncheon, served with, say, an egg salad.

NOODLE RING

Two cups noodles, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ½ cup grated cheese, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon white pepper, ¾ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Drain. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Season with salt, pepper, mustard and Worchestershire sauce. Add cheese and cook until melted. Remove from fire and add noodles and well beaten yolks of eggs. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into a well buttered mold and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Unmold and serve with any preferred creamed mixture. Be sure to grease the mold thoroughly. Otherwise you'll have trouble removing baked mixture. Run spatula around both edges of mold and invert on a hot platter or chop-plate, depending on shape of mold.

Tomorrow's Menu

LUNCHEON: Baked macaroni and onions, tomato and celery salad, Boston brown bread, apple pie, ginger cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER: Rolled and stuffed shoulder of mutton, rice croquettes, currant jelly, Boston head lettuce and cucumber salad, elderberry cobbler, milk, coffee.

GOODBYE for ever to coaxing children to eat cereals. Make breakfast a temptation with Quaker Puffed Rice or Quaker Puffed Wheat, the confection-like cereals that children really love. Wedlock Not Sacred To Younger Couples

The reason that there is such an appalling increase in the number of divorces is because young people do not marry for keeps nowadays. They do not regard marriage as the most binding and lasting contract that a human being can make. They look upon it as a romantic adventure upon which one continues if the path is flower strewn, but from which one turns back if it proves a rocky road to travel.

Dorothy Dix

Nothing is commoner than to hear a girl or boy say: "Oh, I'll try marriage once anyway. You don't have to stick to it if you don't like it." And they don't stick to it if they don't like it. They wreck their homes as little scrapbooks as a child knocks down the house of cards it has built. They rush to the divorce court because they do not find each other as glamorous as husbands and wives as they were as sweethearts; because they can't go to as many night clubs; because they can't afford the fine clothes and amusements they were accustomed to; because they don't like dishwashing and pushing a perambulator; because they find domesticity dull and boring; because marriage limits their freedom and cramps their style.

Now marriage has always had every one of these drawbacks. It has always had its disillusions. No marriage has ever come up to expectations because husbands and wives are just men and women with their inevitable faults and shortcomings and not the pin-feathered angels and noble heroes they appear during courtship. Marriage has always had more duties than thrills in it.

But our forefathers never thought of such a thing as breaking up their marriages because they did not turn out to be all their fondest fancy painted. It never occurred to them that they could welch on their matrimonial bargains because they had got tired of them and thought that, after all, they would prefer being bachelors, or follow a career to being married. Nor did it enter their minds that they could discard their husband or wife because they saw some one who looked better to them than their present spouse. They had signed a life contract for better or worse and they did not break it except for the gravest of reasons. Therefore, there were few divorces.

The present generation, however, does not look upon marriage in this light. It regards the "until death do us part" vow as old stuff, as archaic as an ox wagon. It marries with one eye on the altar and the other eye on the divorce court and the thought in the back of its head that it will stay married only as long as everything is O.K.

And this is why so many marriages are failures, as anything else would be a failure that you went into in that spirit, trusting to luck and not to your own effort and determination to make a success. No general ever won a victory who commenced his campaign with the intention of running up the white flag if the enemy put up any fight. No professional or business man ever achieved fame and fortune who began his career with the thought that he would chuck everything if he encountered any difficulties.

On the contrary, those who succeed in any line of endeavor are the men and women who have determined to make a go of what they have undertaken and to let nothing discourage them and no difficulty appal them. They have set themselves to fight through to victory, no matter how long and hard the battle. They know that in the beginning there will be many drawbacks, many disappointments and disillusions, but they steel themselves to endure them and so, at last, they wrest victory out of defeat.

No, they go into marriage half licked already because they are thinking that they will give it up if it doesn't come up to their romantic dreams. So when wife loses her looks or can't make pie like mother, husband gets bitter and disgruntled and knocks all the under-pinnings out of a happy home. And when wife can't have all the money she wants she puts on her hat and starts for Reno.

They haven't the grit to take it and to make a success of marriage you've got to take it, and like it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Good Taste

By Francine Markel

I live on a farm, and during the busy season I serve our breakfast in the kitchen. I am expecting an old schoolmate from the city to visit me—I am puzzled about this matter. H. T. B.

Answer—Certainly, you should not feel at all embarrassed by following your usual custom. If the family is large and breakfast frequently has to be rushed, you might visit your friend with a tray of fruit, toast and coffee in her room after the family breakfast is over.

Miss Phyllis Belmont will promptly mail personal answers to questions from any readers inclosing with their question a self-addressed, 3-cent stamped envelope.

Correct Diet Will Help To Keep Youthfulness

By GLADYS GLAD

Madame Recamier, who was one of the brightest lights of the Napoleonic era, was one lass who must have known the secret of perpetual youth. This historical character retained her youthful attractiveness and charm for an amazing number of years. Even past 60, a Prussian prince threatened suicide because she wouldn't marry him.

The alluring Madame Recamier must have known the secret of two about diet, for it is an age-old theory that diet has a great deal to do with the maintenance of youth. A correct diet will do much to preserve one's pep and youthful vivacity.

A Roman philosopher said that most people age themselves with poisons which they create in their own bodies, and just the other day a well-known physician said the same thing. Not romantic poisons like the poisons of the Borgias. The poisons they create in their systems are slow poisons that take years to cause death. But there are poisons that make people seem ugly and old long before their years warrant it.

DIET ALWAYS FOLLOWED

The physician that I refer to above believes that unless we humans follow a good daily diet, we should not expect to be able to prolong our youthfulness. The diet that this physician prescribes for the prolongation of youth and beauty is a simple one. For breakfast, he advises that only fruit, cooked or raw, be taken. And only one kind should be consumed at this meal, although as much as desired of the chosen one may be eaten. For luncheon, he advises vegetables—fresh, if possible—and a leafy salad. And for dinner he considers a serving of meat, one or two cooked vegetables, and a salad sufficient to satisfy the bodily requirements of any normally healthy individual.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Weight

Sally: I think that a girl five feet four inches tall and 25 years of age should weigh about 128 pounds.

Bluing Rinse

Elinor: Bluing used in the bluing rinse for black hair is not the ordinary laundry bluing. There is a special hair bluing that can be procured in any of the better class of beauty shops.

Figure

Topsy: Constipation may indeed be a cause of overweight. Full information on correcting constipation is contained in my "New Figure" booklet, also a reducing course that takes off about eight to ten pounds in two weeks.

Mouth Wash

Maxine: An excellent mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth teaspoon of borax, one-fourth teaspoon of peroxide and one-fourth teaspoon of salt in a glass of warm water.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Mothers suffer through their children far more than if the cause of hurt concerned themselves.

It is, of course, extended personality and call it selfishness if we will, it is there and no mother can help it entirely.

O. R. Barton

The old saying that "hell knows no fury like a woman scorned" may well be said of the mother whose child is scorned.

I know many mothers who have schooled themselves to view such matters with philosophy. The latter realize that the children themselves are the first to be affected by her bitterness.

This brings me to the point in question—why so many children develop a feeling of abuse and mistreatment by their playmates and an abiding resentment against all people.

Jack's mother remarks quite unkindly that Cary could have asked her boy to go to the farm with him instead of Roy.

As she talks, her indignation increases. She says, perhaps, that Cary only uses Jack and plays with him when he can't get anyone else. She may even permit herself to remark that she never trusted him. And that brings up another subject in her mind, for excitement is a great inventor.

Now it is Cary's mother who falls under her axe. She tells Jack that the lady was really the one behind it all and says that she always knew Mrs. B. never liked Jack and was jealous of him because he was a grade higher in school. And Mrs. B. is a meddler and a gossip and makes trouble for everybody and thinks she is the Queen Bee of the street because to this new type of silhouette she has been elected to the Literary club.

By this time she is miles away from Cary and his junket to the farm with Roy. But no matter. She must relieve the wound, and talking is her outlet. Jack listens and protests in loyalty to his friend. Perhaps then she shrieks that he is a big softy and a real boy never would speak to Cary again.

Boy-like, Jack is puzzled; he can't see why he should cut his chum, because the man in him gets over a hurt quickly. However, some of the toxin takes root in his system. He is never the same to Cary again and won't go near his house—Cary, his dear friend, who only took Roy because Roy had done him a kindness once and he felt like doing him a good turn.

Too bad. It seldom pays to turn children against others, because they suffer still more in the end.

ORANGE ICING

Two cups sugar, two-thirds cup boiling water, four egg yolks, one tablespoon butter, one-half grated rind and juice of orange. Cook sugar and water to the thread stage. Beat yolks until light, pour syrup slowly over them and beat well as you pour. When well blended add butter, a speck of salt and the fruit juice and rind.

Full skirts, pleated all the way around like the ones you wore when you were ten, are a new high style note. For fall, designers are planning to launch suave street dresses with pleated skirts as well as jersey and woolen frocks that lend themselves particularly well to this new type of silhouette.

ZEALANDER TO BUY AIRCRAFT FOR ETHIOPIPA

Antipodean Rancher Will Recruit Fighting Unit

HONOLULU, Sept. 5—A New Zealand rancher, who gave his name as Baron Corneille de Mey D'Alkemade, and asserted he was a former follower of Lawrence of Arabia, announced Wednesday he would sail Saturday for the United States to purchase at least 12 attack planes for use in Ethiopia's impending war with Italy.

D'Alkemade asserted he would lead the air unit to Africa after recruiting crews of young American fliers "Prepared to fight in deadly earnest, expecting no self-glorification." He added they would be rewarded by concessions from Ethiopia.

D'Alkemade declined to disclose who was backing his enterprise, but claimed he possessed a visa to enter the African empire.

D'Alkemade's identity was vouched for here by John Williams, Honolulu newspaper man who formerly lived in New Zealand.

Hepburn Heard At Moose Jaw

MOOSE JAW, Sept. 5—Aggravation of the unemployment problem during five years of office at Ottawa last night was charged to the Bennett administration by Premier Hepburn of Ontario.

Speaking here after addressing a meeting at Regina earlier in the evening, Premier Hepburn urged support of J. Gordon Ross, former M.P. for Moose Jaw and Liberal candidate in the elections, Oct. 14.

Premier Hepburn pointed to trade expansion, increased revenue and decreased public debt under the administration of Liberal leader Mackenzie King prior to 1930 and declared the administration of Prime Minister Bennett had curtailed trade, increased the public debt and failed to serve the public.

Dealing with promises of Prime Minister Bennett before the 1930 election, Premier Hepburn said Mr. Bennett had "blasted his way" out of world markets and not into them. The imperial trade agreements had failed to increase trade, he charged.

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS.

'Way last fall Robert Riehle, Jeanette MacDonald's fiance and manager, returned from Europe where he had been scouting talent for M-G-M. In his pocket he carried a contract with Lutze Rainer (pronounced Ryner), famous Viennese star. After three weeks of solid talking, he finally convinced studio officials that she really was to be one of those sensations you read about but seldom see.

The longest bath in movie history was taken the other day by Rosita Diaz for a scene in "Rose of France." For nine hours Rosita sat in a bathtub, wearing nothing but soap suds—and plenty of them. Glycerine had to be added to the water to keep her skin from drying out and to make the suds shine so they would photograph well.

How do you like this? Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials decided that Joseph Calleia, who was all set to portray the title role in "Robin Hood of El Dorado," was too old for the part because the bandit died at the age of 23. So they have signed Warner Baxter—who is a good ten years older than Calleia.

a "find." So they sent for her to come to Hollywood.

Then she sat . . . and sat . . . and sat—and probably still would be sitting if Myrna Loy hadn't walked out of "Escapade" in which she was featured with William Powell. Studios execs, being stuck for a leading lady, gave Miss Rainer the part.

Then the picture was previewed. Now the bosses wouldn't part with Miss Rainer for a million dollars. And for good reason. She's going

CAPITOL

The story of "Page Miss Glory," gay comedy starring Marion Davies, which opened a three-day run at the Capitol theatre yesterday, is as funny as it is unique. Miss Davies, who plays the part of a pretty, pretty nor bright, gets a job as chambermaid in a swanky New York hotel in which reside a promoter, portrayed by Pat O'Brien, who has nothing to promote, and Mack McHugh, a jobless newspaper photographer.

McHugh, learning that an advertiser is offering a big cash reward for a photograph of America's prettiest girl, makes a composite picture, blending the features of famous stage and society beauties and submits it under the name of "Dawn Glory."

He wins the prize and trouble starts. A "Dawn Glory" craze sweeps the country and even Miss Davies falls for it with startling results. Properly attired and "made-up," she becomes the reincarnation of Dawn Glory, and she wants to be is the sweetheart of Dick Powell.

The action is fast and furious.

Miss Davies, one of the screen's most beautiful women, wears some gorgeous gowns.

NO COD CATCH: LABRADOR WILL NEED RELIEF

QUEBEC, Sept. 5. — The fisher folk of Labrador are in need of assistance in the way of provisions of food to carry them through the winter months, Bishop Philip Carrington of the Anglican Diocese of Quebec, said yesterday following his return from an observation visit into that section of his widespread diocese.

Bishop Carrington said the cod catch, principal means of livelihood of the fishermen and their families along the bleak coast, has been an almost complete failure this season and there will be a serious lack of food. There is a genuine need for winter supplies of food, the bishop declared.

DISGRUNTLED MEN MAKE UP STEVENS RANKS

Mitchell Hepburn Continues Fiery Talks On Tour Westward

REGINA, Sept. 5—Candidates of the Reconstruction Party led by H. H. Stevens are a bunch of disgruntled men," declared Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, young Ontario Liberal chieftain, in an address to more than 2000 people here last night.

"Stevens himself is disgruntled, and so is gathering around him disgruntled men. They have no national policy and they are out to serve their selfish interests."

Premier Hepburn said that he would not be surprised if 50 Liberals were elected in Ontario in the federal election. The Tory party is through even in Ontario," he said. "They couldn't win a seat in a straight fight."

Mr. Hepburn and his party arrived in the city late in the afternoon from the east. His stay in Regina was short and as soon as the evening meeting was finished, Premier Hepburn drove to Moose Jaw to address another gathering there. From Moose Jaw he was to continue westward to speak in Alberta cities.

Dies Suddenly

PONOKA, Sept. 5.—Peter R. Sharpe, 32, of Edmonton, died here suddenly on Monday while visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Mooney. He drove to Ponoka Sunday in the company of his wife and two children.

Peter Sharpe, 7729 110A street, was an employe of the Canadian Bakeries.

Science Knows G-Whiz As New Mental Ability

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 5.—The "G-Man" of psychology, the famous English scientist, Professor N. Spearman of the University of London, last night told the American Psychological Association about "new tests of ability."

"G" in psychology is not the same as in the United States government secret service. Scientific "G" stands for a mysterious factor of the mind which appears to underline all intelligence. "G" is something you are born with. No effort of yours ever increases your supply of G; but lack of effort may cause loss of some of it.

1,300 EXPERIMENTS

"G" is the discovery of Professor Spearman and a group of associates in Europe, America, Africa and Asia. He reported last night on experiments on 1,200 persons which bring to light some of the facts about G.

"One might be inclined," said Professor Spearman, "to designate this factor G as general intelligence, but our results show that it extends far beyond the range of what is usually called by this name.

IS MIND-POWER

"For instance, it plays an appreciable part in such simple operations as counting groups of dots and in taking down dictated numbers. It might perhaps be called a person's general mind-power, available for all his many special purposes. Perhaps it is the mental side of what Lashley has called the 'mass action' of the 'cortex' of the brain.

SECOND FACTOR

"Next in importance after this general factor comes another which appears to be verbal. It makes its appearance in all linguistic activities whether those of comprehension or expression. It plays a large part in the most exalted operations such as reasoning and nevertheless seems to consist essentially in nothing more than a capacity to associate and symbol with any meaning.

"It (this second factor) certainly constitutes a large portion of what is measured by the present test of I.Q. (the intelligence tests)."

Added Committee Proposal Shelved

Proposal by Mayor J. A. Clarke that five or six standing committees of city council be appointed as compared to the two standing committees now in existence, purchase and bylaws, was laid over on the suggestion of the mayor when the civic bylaws committee met, Wednesday.

Mayor Clarke explained it was too late in the year to consider increasing the number of committees. When he first brought the plan before council, he argued that the amount of civic business to be transacted required additional committees with less members than is the case with the existing committees, which have five aldermen on each.

TERROR WAS ABOARD DIXIE DURING STORM

Rescued Passengers Tell Horrors of Long Night Vigil

ABOARD COAST GUARD VESSEL CARRABASSETT, AT SEA, Sept. 5—A night of terror spent by passengers of the Morgan liner Dixie—huddled together in the ship salon while four inches of water splashed over their feet—was described today by the first boatload brought to this coast guard boat.

The passengers unanimously praised the courage and the efforts of the officers and crew to lessen the terrors of their predicament. Music, refreshments and fruit helped them keep their minds off their difficulties, the passengers said.

SHIP DAMAGED

Edward B. Brommell, New York, one of the first passengers removed, said the battered condition of the Dixie, which he said lost the use of all its small boats and suffered damage to its glass and superstructure was "proof of what we went through."

"It was in the late afternoon," Brommell related, "We were driven on the reef where we were cushioned on sand.

120 MILE GALE

"The hull of the vessel was pounded up and down by the waves and we were forced to take refuge in the salon.

"After the vessel had been driven on the reef by a wind said to be 120 miles an hour at the stern, the crew did everything for our comfort.

"Short-circuiting caused the lights to burn out at one time. It caused a small blaze quickly extinguished by the crew. Several suffered bruises."

PRAYS 5 HOURS

Father F. A. Wakeman, San Diego, Calif., the first passenger brought aboard the Carrabassett, said:

"I clung to one place in the ship and prayed for five hours.

"Several persons came and knelt to me for absolution. I firmly believe the vessel would have been lost had we not been driven onto the reef."

LOUIS BUCKLES DOWN IN CAMP

POMPTON LAKES, N.J., Sept. 5 —Donning the gloves for his first serious workout since stopping King Levinsky in Chicago last month, Joe Louis buckled down to hard work yesterday for his coming battle with Max Baer in New York Sept. 24.

Following a six-mile jaunt in the morning, the Brown Bomber went through a brisk six-round session in the gymnasium yesterday afternoon. After two rounds of shadow boxing he stepped two rounds each with two sparring partners, Larry Johnson and Roy Williams. For the most part he contented himself with polishing up his speed and boxing.

Jacobs Proud Baer's Workout

SPECULATOR, N.Y., Sept. 5—With Promoter Mike Jacobs looking on, Max Baer put on an impressive performance yesterday afternoon as he continued to drill for his Sept. 24 bout with Joe Louis, Detroit negro sensation. The former champion, boxed four rounds each with Tony Canzela and Lou Scozza and went one heat with Cecil Harris.

No Reasons For Alarm, Advice of Health Officer

Sixteen City, Ten Country Cases On Record—Special Meeting to Review Precautions.

Informed Wednesday that the infantile paralysis situation was causing considerable worry to many parents with young children, Dr. R. B. Jenkins, medical health officer, has decided to call a special meeting of the city health board for 4.30 p.m. Thursday, to discuss precautionary measures already adopted to prevent spread of the disease and also to deal with any new steps it may be deemed advisable to take in this direction.

"There is absolutely no reason for parents becoming needlessly alarmed and panic-stricken over the presence of the disease here," declared Dr. Jenkins. "The ban we have put into effect here is simply a safeguard. Children will be protected from carriers of the disease if they are prevented from attending public gatherings of any kind, including theatres, Sunday schools and public playgrounds."

MAJORITY UNDER 15

Restrictions were placed on the social activities of persons 18 years of age and under simply because the majority of those suffering from the disease were of this age, the health official said.

Asked whether he intended advising that no children be allowed to ride on street cars, Dr. Jenkins said the situation as yet did not call for such a stringent measure. "I would advise parents, however, to see that their children, as far as possible, do not travel on the cars during the rush hours or that they are placed in a position where they might come in contact with possible carriers of the disease," he stated.

STREET CAR BAN

During the 1927 epidemic of infantile paralysis, which was far more severe than the present situation, children were not allowed to ride on trams.

Medical authorities were not considering shutting down theatres altogether in view of the fact that several of the cases reported were persons over 18 years of age, Dr. Jenkins declared. He felt sufficient precautions were being taken when children were excluded from motion picture houses.

Continuing, he said the most definite cause of the spread of the disease was the distribution of germ carriers—persons who themselves were immune but carried the germs on their persons.

POTENT SERUM

Explaining the use of the potent serum which is used in combatting infantile paralysis, Dr. Jenkins stated that such serum was obtained from blood taken from those who had previously suffered from the disease. Injected in the skin, it was a curative measure.

No additional cases of the disease were reported Wednesday night. There is now a total of 26, there being 16 city and 10 country cases.

C.P.R. CHIEF HERE TUESDAY

Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railways, and party arrive in Edmonton Tuesday next on a special train in the course of an inspection trip to western Canada. After a short stay in the city, the party will leave for Peace River, returning to Edmonton, Sept. 14.

Sir Edward is travelling east, having inspected Canadian Pacific properties in Vancouver and Victoria.

Wheat Cutting Is Under Way In North

Wheat cutting has commenced in the Peace River district and will be general in a few days, according to the report of the Northern Alberta Railways for the week previous to Sept. 4, released on Thursday by authority of John Callaghan, general manager.

Little damage from frost has been reported.

Weather during the last week has been warm and general report is that the crops have been ripening fast. With several days more warm weather cutting will be general.

Wheat is ahead of other grains, which are reports ripening rather slowly.

The yield is expected to be good, while high hopes are held out for a satisfactory quality.

$700,000 TO IMPROVE CITY POWER PLANT

Mayor Clarke Makes Inspection Trip Through Power House

Necessary improvements to the city power plant to equip it to carry Edmonton's peak power load would cost in the neighborhood of $700,000, it was stated by Mayor J. A. Clarke following an inspection trip through the plant, Wednesday. The mayor recalled that a local electrical machinery agency had informed city council some time ago that it would be willing to accept City of Edmonton bonds at par and a low interest rate as payment for equipment supplied.

Plans covering the proposed extension of the plant would be completed within a week, the mayor said.

REPAIR MACHINE

It has been suggested that one of the plant's old Westinghouse 2,000 kilowatt machines which has been out of service for some time be repaired and placed back in service to meet electrical demands if and when the city commences to produce all its own juice, according to the mayor.

A new 15,000 or 20,000 kilowatt machine would be required if the plant were to be operated at a high standard of efficiency, he said.

Instructions were issued Thursday that no person would be allowed to visit the power plant without written permission from either the commissioner or Alex Bisset, superintendent. Considerable interest is being taken in the local power situation, and many people have visited the plant that civic officials are considering setting definite visiting hours for those wishing to inspect the machinery.

It has also been decided to place a watchman on duty at the plant to prevent those not authorized gaining admission to the plant.

ABERHART MAY GO EAST FRIDAY

Following a cabinet meeting on Thursday, Premier William Aberhart declared that, dependent upon wishes and desires of Premier R. B. Bennett at Ottawa, he might leave for Ottawa on Friday to discuss Alberta's financial position.

He stated his Ottawa discussions would include the application by Mayor Andy Davison of Calgary for a $500,000 loan to tide that city over a crisis. Mayor Davison had a lengthy conference with the Premier before the cabinet meeting.

The Premier said the government approved of the application and would duly place it before Ottawa. If he went east on Friday he would take it with him, while if he did not, it would be immediately forwarded.

"It seems necessary for Calgary to have this loan in this crisis and we will do all we can to help," said the Premier. "Also, we are satisfied that Calgary's affairs in general are not in bad shape."

Farmer Seeking Debt Adjustment

Head of a family of 14, ir which there had been much sickness, a farmer in the Radway district appealed to the Farmer-Creditor Debt Arrangement Board Thursday to have debts totalling $9500 scaled down.

Principal indebtedness consists of a $2500 mortgage held by an insurance company and almost an equal amount owing to an implement company for a threshing machine.

The board, headed by Mr. Justice Ewing, promised careful consideration of the appeal.

Life of Legionnaire Is Really Hot, Says Albertan

Alastair Lindsay Tells of Life in Hard-fighting Force

CAMROSE, Sept. 5—The life of a "Legionnaire" is good and hot, according to Alastair Lindsay, an Alberta miner, and former Camrose district man now serving a five-year enlistment in the famous French Foreign Legion in the hot sands of the Sahara.

Alastair Lindsay, young tall and lean, worked at the Dinant mines, a few miles north of Camrose, a few years ago. He had "knocked about a bit before then, but again succumbing to an attack of wanderlust he "hopped it" to the tattered seaport. After weeks aboard tramp freighters on high seas, he landed on the North African coast, and still thirsting for adventure, he enlisted for a five-year "engagement" in "la Legion Etrangere."

Life in the Legion? "It's the hardest drinking, hardest living, and hardest fighting force the world has produced," says Lindsay in a letter to a friend here. "and if that sounds like the usual line handed out in most fiction magazine stories, it is no bunk," he added. "Mon Comandant" is a Danish prince; "Mon Capitaine" a marquis. But to a Legionnaire, especially if he has not been used to a hard military life, the period of training is a gruelling experience.

"Climbing mountains under the North African sun, or marching forty miles during the night, under a cold Algerian moon, with a sixty-pound pack on your back, carrying a rifle, etc., besides, certainly tests one's ability," says Lindsay. As to stories of harsh discipline, they are slightly exaggerated he says.

"The Legion is conducted in a logical military manner with strict discipline under war conditions. Lashes are rarely ever meted out, outside the penal battalion of incorrigibles, usually posted at Colomb Bechar, the first and southern most French post in the Sahara desert, 600 kilometers from Sadia, Algeria," writes Lindsay.

"I have just completed that trip," he adds, "escorting a dozen prisoners from the disciplinary posts to that discipline centre of the Legion: The Devil's Island of the desert—Colomb Bechar.

Ex-Miner Is Now On Hot Sahara Sand

MORLEY RAWLINS — ALASTAIR LINDSAY

"Although today there is not the same amount of fighting in southern Algeria, and in Morrocco, as in years past, there is always and will be for years to come, a few battles left for the Legion to fight.

"One must realize," he adds, "that in the desert there are thousands of Arab bands, nomads of the wild lands and sands. A more vicious enemy would be hard to find in this world. These wild men are much trouble and we have many "engagements" with them. But it is forbidden to write or talk of them. It is part of our "policing" the desert.

"Our Legion Etrangere, the proudest, and most colorful, fighting force in existence—now over a hundred years old—has interesting museums called "Salles d'Honneur" Halls of Honor) in Marseilles, France, in Oran, Sadia, and Sidibel-Abbes (the training centre of the Legion) in Algeria. There one can see relics of men and mere boys who fell fighting the notorious Arab fighting chieftains—Ab-del-Krim and Ab-del-Kader. The latter was trapped at one time in a gully which I can see from where I write in the barracks at Saida. But I wish my five-year engagement were over. It's hard."

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Sir Malcolm Campbell, famed British racing driver, shattered all records for land speed on Tuesday by hurtling his Bluebird over the Utah salt beds at 301 miles an hour. Everyone will admit that 301 miles an hour is dusting along. How would you have liked to have been sitting alongside Sir Malcolm as he made new history, was the question asked Edmontonians by the Bulletin.

Here are the replies

J. R. PATENAUDE, railway office worker: "It would be good to have that car when you're late for work in the mornings."

EDWARD "SCOTTY" THOMPSON: "As pigeon flying is my hobby, I'd never have a need to drive at high speeds. Why should I be frightened in a car driven by such a capable driver as I'd go with Sir Malcolm any time I had the chance."

ELSIE RIPPLE, stenographer: "I'd far sooner drive with Sir Malcolm Campbell than lots of Edmonton drivers I know. I think it would be quite thrilling."

D. "BRIX" PEEBLES: "I think I would sooner watch the Bluebird shatter records from the distance of about two miles just in case he started to skid."

CITIZEN FINDS ITALY STIRRED AS WAR LOOMS

Of all the European countries Great Britain has shown the greatest measure of economic recovery and is in better condition, declared Nicolas Rodis, 118 avenue and 84 street, on his return here from a six weeks' trip to the Old World during which he visited Britain, Italy, Switzerland, France and Greece.

"Generally speaking conditions on the continent are bad," he declared. "The cost of living, compared to the economic conditions, is high, with the exception of Greece." He found that Italy was greatly stirred by the Ethiopian dispute and despite a large volume of tourist traffic, every precaution was taken to examine passports and inquire into the bona fide of tourists to protect the country against spies. The majority of the people were healthy in support of Mussolini, although there were some who did not like the idea of war.

Four days were spent in Venice, a city which appealed greatly to Mr. Rodis on account of the unique construction of the city and its romantic background.

Conditions in Greece he found excellent.

Throughout Europe heat was intense and in many points merchants closed their stores at 4 p.m. and re-opened them in the cool of the evenings. Beaches at watering-places were thronged in the evenings.

AUTO DEALERS ARE GUESTS AT LUNCHEON HERE

Hear A. H. Stevens, General Motors Official From Oshawa, Ont.

In the General Motors party were R. G. Mortyne, business management manager for Alberta and J. C. Ross, Calgary, Alberta zone chief.

Wednesday night a similar conference was held in Calgary for the southern Alberta General Motors dealers, distributors and accountants.

"With the improved general condition in Canada, General Motors anticipates increased sales during the fall season," said Mr. Stevens. On his first trip through the west in the 1934-35 season, Mr. Stevens finds the prairies making a gratifying comeback.

"From the reports of our dealers in Alberta we are full of confidence in the future," he said.

Mr. Stevens is leaving the city for Pacific coast points Friday morning and will then return to General Motors headquarters at Oshawa.

Two car thefts were reported to police Wednesday. A Ford sedan, owned by McNeill's taxi, was reported stolen from the C.N.R. station about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, livery license No. 8. G. THIS CURIOUS WORLD

—By William Ferguson

THE exact origin of the belief in thunderbolts is not known. For centuries people believed that lightning actually hurled solid objects at the earth. When lightning strikes in sand, it fuses together the sand particles, into what is known as a fulgurite. These objects may have originated the theory of thunderstones.

Urges Canadian Mayors For Federal Candidacies

COULD EXERT GREAT FORCE FOR RELIEF

Municipalities Parley at North Bay Receives Suggestion

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 5.—Entry of Canadian mayors into the dominion election campaign was advocated yesterday by Mayor H. Ferland of Verdun, Que., at the 25th annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities.

The force the mayors could exert at Ottawa on relief matters, regardless of party affiliations, would be inestimable, said Mayor Ferland. He urged that leaders of respective parties be asked for definite statements of the policy to be adoped by them regarding unemployment should they be elected to power.

MEETS OPPOSITION

Mayor Camilien Houde, of Montreal, and Mayor W. G. Bullbrook, of North Bay, president of the association, opposed any entry of the association into politics. "Nothing but strength in numbers will solve this problem for the mayors of Canadian municipalities," said Mayor Bullbrook.

The executive was authorized by the association to place before the dominion government again a resolution passed at the Montreal conference last March asking the government to assure total cost of direct relief.

MONTREAL MENACE

Mayor Houde warned the delegates that unless the dominion government stepped into the relief situation, there would be disorders of a national scale. "If relief were to be cut off in Montreal, the first thing I would have to do would be to read the Riot Act," he said.

GROUP FORMED BY NAVY VETS

Commander R. J. Gale was elected president of the Empire Navy War Veterans' Association at an organization meeting held recently in the King Edward hotel.

Other officers named were: secretary, First Lieut. E. Tooney; vice-president, Second Lieut. T. R. Reid; master at arms, S. W. Sheppard; Bo'sum, R. Urquhart.

The executive will hold offices to the end of the current year and all branches of the naval service, including the Marines and former Royal Air Force, will be allowed membership.

Associate membership will be allowed some 90 R.C.V.N. reserve men in the city.

It is requested that all naval men be on deck, Friday, Sept. 20 at the King Edward hotel at 8:30 p.m.

Bare Limbs Are Taboo At Bronte

BRONTE, Ont., Sept. 5.—The citizens of Bronte would not object to the brevity of the modern bathing suit if the swimmers would restrict themselves to swimming. But when they wander through the town in them it is a little too much.

So the county council amended the public morality by-law yesterday "to restrict any person appearing in a public place not in the vicinity of a bathing beach, unless wearing a proper garment, not transparent, properly fastened and stretching from the shoulder to the knees." A fine of not more than $20 with a jail option will be the penalty for further offenders.

Young Canadian Bursary Awards

TORONTO, Sept. 5. — Seventeen bursaries in Canadian universities to young Canadians whose fathers were killed or seriously disabled in the Great War were announced yesterday at the national executive meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. It was found possible this year to present 17 bursaries, valued at $1200 each, instead of the usual 15. The western Canada awards included:

Alberta: Eric D. Wilson, Calgary; James M. Mann, Peace River.

Ethiopia Presents Forbidding Terrain To Invading Italian Troops

The possibility of war between Italy and Ethiopia leads to much discussion of the physical features of the country ruled by Haili Selassie I, of the obstacles which they would present to an invader, and of the opportunities the Ethiopians might have of waging an effective guerilla warfare in such terrain, even against a better-armed and better-equipped enemy. The drawing publishd her by arrangement with the London Illustrated News and Central Press, Canadian, shows how the country consists mainly of an immense plateau, mountainous and riven with gorges, fringed on the south and east by hot, dry, inhospitable deserts. Through these an invading force, penetrating from Eritrea or Italian Somaliland, would have to make its way before reaching the central table-land. And even there Ethiopia has few vulnerable points. Addis Ababa, the capital, Harrar, the centre of the emperor's own province, and Dire-Dawa are the only towns of considerable size. A vivid description of the country is contained in Mr. James E. Baum's "Savage Abyssinia": "Extensive level, or almost level, regions are the exception, and the country as a whole, is a mass of mountains and canyons, a torn and riven jumble of peaks and cliffs and escarpments, piled helter-skelter on a high table-land. And the thing is on so massive and grand a scale that its ruggedness becomes depressing after a few months of travel. Mules give out and the distance covered in a day's trek shows so small upon the map that the traveller begins to wonder whether or not he will ever reach his destination. It is impossible to make long marches because of the difficulties of the country; the deep canyons and steep ascents . . . There are all sorts and conditions of terrain in this last independent African kingdom, for its boundaries extend east into the Somali desert, west into the fever-haunted jungles of the Upper Nile drainage basin, and south into the arid wastes toward Lake Rudolf. But the low hot fringes, outskirts, are not the real Abyssinia. That, as we have said, is the high, rocky, giant's table that stands, a titantic bulwark, its peaks and buttresses thrust into the African sky, a monument to the ancient geological forces that created it when the world was young. And among those peaks, plateaux, escarpments, and elevated plains dwells the unconquered highland race—the children of the Queen of Sheba." From this description it becomes plain that effective use of aircraft by the Italians would be as difficult as any other military activity. There are few places where landing is possible in the plateau country, and the air there is so rarefied, being 8,000 or more feet above sea-level, that taking-off is always hazardous. It is of interest to draw attention, finally, to the position of Lake Tana, amid the hills in northwestern Abyssinia. Lake Tana is the source of the Blue Nile, and for that reason closely affects British interests. On its waters depends the irrigation of much of the Soudan. (Drawn by G. H. Davis.)

SURVEYOR IS RESCUED FROM CRAGGY TRAP

Marooned 22 Hours 1,000 Feet Up On Rugged Peak Face

CALGARY, Sept. 5. — Trapped 1,000 feet high on the face of a rugged mountain in a cave, back from a narrow, treacherous ledge, Caesar "Jimmy" Gordinia, 30-year-old surveyor-prospector, was rescued Wednesday.

For 22 hours he was marooned in the mountain cave, nine miles from a mining camp in Two Brothers valley, in northern British Columbia. To the gallantry of two Caribou Indians he owes his life tonight.

TAKE ROPE UP

The Caribou tribesmen climbed an almost vertical cliff, dragging 500 feet of rope with them. With this Gordonia was lowered from his prison cave to safe footing. From there he was taken by other members of the rescue party of 1[illegible] prospectors and Indians to safety.

Last night, the rescued and rescuers camped on the mountainside, after a perilous descent, and today Gordinia, after a night's rest will be brought into camp. He was able to walk and was reported in "good shape" though he had suffered from the severe cold.

LIGHTLY CLAD

In a freezing temperature, and snow flurries swirling about the mountain peak, the marooned man spent the night clad only in trousers, shirt and socks.

Tuesday, Gordonia, conducting a prospecting survey from the gold camp, started up the mountainside. After a heavy climb, he found he could not descend and started to climb to the top of an unnamed peak 8,000 feet high.

MESSAGE IN BOOT

After climbing 1,000 feet he found his way blocked, and from a narrow ledge he made his way to the cold, damp cave. He had taken his shoes off, believing he could climb better in sock feet.

Far down the mountainside another member of the prospecting party stood and to him Gordinia hurled a message in his shoe, telling of his predicament. A rescue party was formed but it was not until this afternoon its members could get near the trapped man. During the day, he threw another message in his shoe to the rescuers, directing them in their efforts at rescue.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo hunts a job and secures part time work in a marine supply store. There she meets wealthy, handsome DOUGLAS MARSH who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Crest Lake. Jo accepts. This causes a quarrel with BRET PAUL to whom she is engaged. Jo breaks the engagement.

She goes to Crest Lake. Her duties are pleasant, but Marsh's eccentric mother takes a dislike to the girl. BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo's popularity, comes to the inn. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, and his wife are also guests.

Fragonet pays Jo marked attentions, tells her he loves her and begs her to marry him as soon as he can secure a divorce. He goes to Hollywood, promising to return soon.

Bret Paul comes to Crest Lake as the life guard.

Fragonet's company decide to make part of a picture at Crest Lake. SILAS DRANN, director, and several others arrive.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

"ENJOYING the moon, Jo?"

This time the girl recognized the voice as belonging to Bret Paul. With another stride Bret stepped from the shadows of the path and into the clear moonlight reflecting up from the shimmering lake.

"I was just going to walk along the shore of the lake," Jo told him with a cordial smile. "Want to come along?"

He hesitated the fraction of a moment—long enough for Jo to sense that he had other plans. But he managed at last to say, "I'd like to very much, Jo."

She smiled quizically. "Perhaps you'd better not, Bret, if you have an appointment."

"I haven't an appointment," he answered stiffly. "Babs said she might take a walk tonight, and I told her I might run into her, that's all."

Jo was somehow enjoying his discomfort thoroughly. "Well, if we should meet her there's no reason why we can't make it a threesome hike, is there? Or do you think three and the moon is a crowd?"

Bret fell into step with her. "Don't start kidding me, Jo. I don't feel like being kidded."

"Oh . . ." she put surprise into her ejaculation. "Then it's THAT serious?"

"Don't be a fool," he told her roughly. "You know darned well I've never been serious about Babs Montgomery. Only a fellow gets mighty lonesome up here, Jo."

"Lonesome? With all this mob?"

He nodded. "Oh, it's all right for you. But I don't belong, and I don't want to, really. I'm just the life guard."

"And I'm just the hostess," Jo laughed.

"But you're a girl, and a darned pretty one. You've all the men chasing you, so of course you're not lonely."

"Not all, Bret," objected Jo with a laugh.

When he answered, his voice was touched with faint anger. "Do you want any more? This aviator fellow, and Marsh—and this crazy Fragonet . . ."

"That's not quite true, Bret. I'll admit that Mr. Fragonet has been a little—well, silly. But Todd Barston is just a good friend, and Douglas Marsh is only my employer."

"Does your work include having dinner with him at the Lone Tree Tavern?"

"Bret . . ." Jo put a hand on his arm. "Bret, let's not get startec on that again. Besides, you've been listening tc the veranda chorus, I'm afraid."

"I haven't been listening to anything," Bret said. "I'm not altogether blind." He turned to her suddenly. "Jo, I don't want to be unpleasant every time we meet. But it hurts me to see you acting like this."

"Hurts you?" repeated Jo, bewildered.

He nodded. "Of course it does. Good Lord, Jo! Do you think I could love you as much as—as I did and not care what you do now?"

"That's true, Bret," admitted Jo slowly. "That's why I don't want our friendship to be spoiled, ever. But somehow we seem to be unable to avoid arguments." She looked out across the lake for a silent moment, then added, "If you could just believe in me, Bret. Why can't you now? You used to believe in me."

"You've changed," he told her quickly. "I don't believe you realize yourself how much you've changed—and that's what makes it hurt all the more."

Jo faced him squarely, and when she spoke again her words were slow, careful, measured. "Perhaps I have changed. Do you really think a girl could be just the same after what happened, Bret?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I loved you, Bret. I doubt if you ever realized how much, because I don't think any man ever realizes how much a woman loves him. He's so wrapped up in himself, so intent with his own love—" She stopped, biting her lips. "Bret, I'd have followed you anywhere, I'd have done anything in the world for you. I thought there wasn't any man in the world quite like you."

"But, Jo—"

"Please let me finish," Jo interrupted. "I thought there wasn't any man in the world like you, Bret—and then you walked into the apartment that night and showed me you'd take the word of someone else against mine."

"You'd lied to me already," Bret reminded her. "You told me you had to work, and then I found you'd been dancing with Marsh."

"I know, Bret. I'm not trying to defend myself. I'm only trying to explain why I've changed. I lied to you, I think, because I was all confused. I'd never had to have a job before, and then suddenly a job was the most important thing in the world. But you wouldn't listen to me even for a minute that night—"

"I didn't want you to come down here," Bret said quickly.

"I HAD to come, don't you see? And when I did come you were finished. Do you remember what you said?"

Bret nodded, as though he did not want to hear the words repeated. "I remember, Jo."

She was silent a moment, and then went on again, slowly. "I didn't feel like living, Bret. I suppose that was the most terrible night I'll ever spend in my whole life. But . . ." she smiled up at him bitterly, "the morning came—and I was still alive. I was still alive and I had to go out and start my job. It was a shock at first when I'd stop and realize that there were hours, even whole days, when I didn't think of you at all, Bret."

"You don't need to walk on the body, Jo."

"I'm not trying to be cruel. But don't you see a girl can't go through a thing like that and be the same? Don't you see that when she comes out of it she's—she's a little harder than before?"

They walked along the lake then for several yards before either spoke again. Finally Bret said "Perhaps you're right, Jo. But that doesn't explain your actions down here. I've known what's been between you and Fragonet, and—"

"There's nothing at all between us. He wants to divorce his wife and, so he insists, marry me."

"A thing like that doesn't come out of the blue sky," Bret said. "He must have had some reason.

"Do you mean to say you think I encouraged him?" asked Jo.

"Maybe you didn't encourage him, exactly, but—" He stopped. "Tell me this. Fragonet's going to be up here again. What do you propose to do?"

"Do? Why, I'll just go along as I have been."

"You won't refuse to see him?" Bret wanted to know.

* * *

Jo shook her head. "I couldn't refuse to see him, Bret. You can't avoid a man in a place like this."

"Perhaps you'll even return to Hollywood with him?" suggested Bret.

For a moment Jo was too incensed to speak. Bret's continual barrage of questions about Fragonet had made her increasingly angry. And now his insinuation that she would carry on what Bret obviously believed to be an affair . . .

"Perhaps I will," Joe said, meeting his eyes defiantly.

Suddenly Bret grasped her shoulders in his strong fingers, brought her nearer to him. "Jo, I want you to leave Crest Lake before Fragonet arrives."

That, Jo told him quietly, was impossible. "And please let go of me, Bret. I'm going back to the Inn."

"I won't let you go until you've promised me that you'll leave this place before he comes."

Startled at the fanatical gleam in Bret's eyes, Jo had difficulty in finding her voice again. But then her anger mounted once more and she jerked herself fiercely from his grip.

"Bret Paul, you've gone insane," she told him hysterically. "I'll leave Crest Lake when I'm ready and not a minute before."

"That means only one thing to me," he answered, glaring at her in the half-light. "It means—"

"You don't have to tell me what it means to you," Jo replied quickly. "It COULD mean only one thing to you. And I think we'd best keep away from each other in the future."

Bret rushed toward her along the path, and before Jo could protect herself he had taken her roughly in his arms. "Jo—Jo, there's no use in my trying to pretend. I still love you, and I guess I always will. That's why I'm so insane. That's why I can't stand to see you changing like this."

Ethiopia Bears National Glory From Many Wars

Humbled Egypt Many Centuries Ago, and in Early Christian Era Was Object of Nations of Europe

By the Canadian Press

With Italy pressing for the control of Ethiopia it is recalled history relates that just 2,800 years ago—about the middle of the eighth century, B.C.—the ancient kingdom of Ethiopia conquered and ruled the fertile land of Egypt, thus turning the tables on the country under whose yoke she had suffered prior to the 11th century B.C. when she gained her independence.

The next most prosperous and important period in Ethiopian history was that between the introduction of Christianity in the fourth century A.D. and the conquest of Egypt by the Mohammedans in the middle of the seventh. Ethiopians possessed a rich territory, carried on a lucrative trade expulsion from Arabia by the Mohammedans they lay practically forgotten by the outer world until the 15th century when Portuguese explorers and missionaries, seeking the fabled Christian kingdom of boundless wealth ruled by "Prester John", which they believed to be Ethiopia, settled there.

The fact that Ethiopia alone, of all the African peoples, accepted and retained a form of Christianity is no less remarkable today than it was to these explorers five centuries ago. Allegiance to the Coptic faith or so-called "Alexandrian church" against Catholicism, Protestantism and Mohammedanism has held firm throughout the centuries, the people as late as 1916 deposing the Emperor Lej Yasu, successor to Menelik II., for his leanings toward Mohammedanism.

RECORD CIVIL WARS

The three centuries from the 18th to the 20th are mainly a record of warring tribes and states, with the rulers of the three divisions—Tigre (northern), Amhara (central), and Shoa (southern), striving against each other for the title of Negus Negusti (King of Kings). The most outstanding figure in this later period is Theodore II., who seized the throne in 1885. Against him the British in 1867 were forced to resort to arms to effect the release of British and European consul and missionaries whom he imprisoned when he received no acknowledgment of a letter to Queen Victoria requesting aid against invading Egyptians. In 1868, defeated and discouraged, with his subjects in rebellion against his cruel and tyrannical rule, Theodore took his own life. An interesting fact is that his only legitimate son, Almayahu, was afterwards sent to England according to his father's wishes. He went to school at Rugby but died at the age of 18, on Nov. 14, 1879, and is buried in St. George's chapel, Windsor.

FREQUENT WARS

There were frequent wars with Egypt from 1872 to 1882, from which Ethiopia emerged victorious, and with Italy from 1885 to 1896. The Ucialli Treaty with Italy in 1889, making Ethiopia virtually an Italian protectorate, signed by Menelik II., son of Theodore's immediate predecessor and grandson of Sahale Selassie, formerly ruler of Shao, was repudiated by him a year later on the grounds that in that sense it differed from the Ethiopian version. The year 1896 saw Ethiopia again victorious and her independence formally recognized by Italy.

This was the last open warfare between European countries and Ethiopia. Settlement of boundary disputes with both Italy and Great Britain was successfully achieved. Relations with the latter have since remained on a friendly basis, Menelik in 1902 agreeing not to obstruct the waters of Lake Tsana and the Blue Nile, and to give the preference to the British government in any undertaking to construct a dam at this spot. Although negotiations have been frequent, nothing definite has yet been accomplished.

Admiral Evans Gets Promotion

LONDON, Sept. 5—Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Evans—Evans of the Broke—Wednesday was appointed commander-in-chief of the Nore in succession to Vice-Admiral Sir Hugh Tweedie.

Since 1933 he had been commander-in-chief of the navy's African station. He also succeeded Vice-Admiral Tweedie in that post.

Vice-Admiral Evans became known as Evans of the Broke during the war. He was in command of H.M.S. Broke in 1917 when the Broke and H.M.S. Swift engaged and defeated six German destroyers.

Salvationists In Prayer For Peace

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Every Salvation Army corps in the Dominion last night prayed for peace and amicable settlement by the League of Nations of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. The services started in London, England, with an appeal by General Evangeline Booth and circled the globe.

The lowly creatures known as trilobites were once the most highly-organized inhabitants of the globe.

CENOTAPH FUND LIST GROWING

Campaign for funds to erect a memorial to the 2363 war dead of this city is proceeding with the utmost enthusiasm, according to A. E. Nightingale, chairman of the committee.

Subscription lists have been sent out, he said, and are being favorably received on all sides.

The "silver chain of remembrance" is being forged in various sections of the city to pyramid the total. This "chain" is formed by a chalk mark on the curb, with an extension added as each donation is made.

The Hudson's Bay Company, said Mr. Nightingale, is dressing a window specially for the drive on Thursday and women have been installed in the store to accept donations on behalf of the committee.

Mr. Nightingale states that all donations can be made direct to Campbell Fraser, treasurer of the committee and manager of the Dominion Bank.

Reference to the campaign was made from various city church pulpits last Sunday.

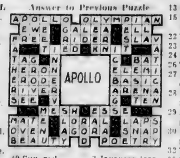

Mr. Nightingale is hopeful that citizens as a whole will fall in behind the campaign and put it over the top with a bang so that the cenotaph can be erected in time for the coming Remembrance Day observance.

WHEAT PRICES SOAR AT 'PEG

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5.—Heavy export sales of Canadian wheat and strength in outside markets encouraged buying on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today that left futures prices 2-1⅞ cents higher at the close, October at 84⅝ and December 84¾ cents.

The May option, which appeared on the board today at 85⅝, closed at 87⅛ cents.

Futures were strong from the opening, advancing 2¼ cents a bushel at one time, as support absorbed without difficulty heavy hedging sales from country deliveries of new-crop grain

Today's foreign sales were conservatively estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels, the second successive day of 1,000,000-bushel exports. Almost all of the movement, aproximately 800,000 bushels, was through Churchill, Manitoba's seaport.

Strength in outside markets augmented local bullishness. Liverpool closed 1¼d to ⅝d higher. Buenos Aires was up ⅝ cent. Chicago was higher.

Cash grains did not reflect the heavy export sales. Coarse grains were sharply higher.

Road To Wainwright Is Gravelled Now

Making Canada's largest buffalo herd freely accessible to motorists, gravelling of the Edmonton-Wainwright road has been entirely completed, according to a wire received by John McNeill of the Alberta Motor Association Thursday from Wainwright.

A crew of provincial road workers has been gravelling a 22-mile stretch from Irma to Wainwright all summer and the entire 151-mile stretch from Edmonton to Wainwright is now in excellent condition.

Buffalo Park, just outside of Wainwright town, contains Canada's largest herd of buffalo.

Broomhall

CHICAGO, Sept. 5—Bonded stocks in the United States continue to increase with further arrivals from Canada, both for re-export, storage and milling for consumption. The great scarcity of 15-16 per cent. protein in the United States, this season will probably mean the importation of substantial quantities of old wheat from Canada where there is an abundance. No. 2 Manitoba wheat is quoted at 4½ cents over Winnipeg October at Montreal, which is about 87 cents a bushel. At Fort William this wheat is quoted at 80 cents. Foreign markets continue to lead the advance, London yesterday closed ¼ to ⅜ higher, and Rotterdam ⅞ to 1½ higher. There is no relief to the drought in the Argentine and the outlook there is very uncertain. A daily official weather map cable will be commenced this week, which will be available around 11 a.m at Broomhall's New York offices. English millers were active buyers of Manitobas yesterday, especially for nearby shipments, prices being attractive compared with the Argentine and Australia. One parcel of Russian wheat sold at 25s 3d for November shipment, which equals 78 cents a bushel plus 6 cents duty to England.

BAR SILVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—Bar silver was quiet and unchanged at 65¼.

Today's Markets

At New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Stocks surged upward today with the buying demand pushing many issues to new highs for the year.

Brokers thought that good business news helped spur the upturn. Advances ranged from fractions to 3 or more points. The close was strong. Transfers approximated 1,950,000

At Montreal

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—Prices were irregular at the close of the Montreal Stock Exchange today, gains and losses being confined to narrow limits.

Consolidated Smelters led the group higher with a gain of 2½ points at 171. Hollinger was up 25 cents at 12.75 and C.P.R. firmed ⅛ at 10½.

Steel of Canada declined ½ at 49½ while B.C. Power eased ⅛ at 23¼. Other power stocks were irregular.

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange steamed up today with higher prices in the golds and base metal divisions. Hollinger advanced 80 cents to 13.50.

Buying of the golds was partly inspired apparently by strength on the New York board. Lake Shore, Dome and McIntyre registered gains of ½ to a point or more while Pioneer, Wright-Hargreaves and Bralorne advanced 25 to 50 cents each and Teck-Hughes about 5 cents. Teck-Hughes, next to Hollinger, was the most active of the big group.

At Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Heavy trading in the liquor shares pulled the Toronto industrial section out of the rut this afternoon, and higher closing prices predominated. Gains up to more than a point appeared.

Distillers-Seagrams held around 25⅝, up ¾. Walkers common at 27¾ was up 1 and Industrial Alcohol A at 8½ gained 1½. Brewery stocks gained fractions.

Nickel at 29 showed a small net gain and Consolidated Smelters was 1½ up at 171½. C.P.R. and Ford A ruled minor fractions higher. Leading oils were up at the close. Foods, Utilities and heavy industrials displayed minor gains and losses.

MILLION BUSHELS CANADIAN WHEAT SOLD FOR EXPORT

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5.—More than 1,000,000 bushels of Canada's wheat were sold for export today, almost all of it from stocks at Port Churchill, Manitoba's northern seaport. As a result futures prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange advanced 2 to 1⅞ cents.

Values closed only fractionally under best prices of the day. October at 84⅝ and December 84¾ cents. The May future, opened for trading at 85⅝ today, closed at 87¼ cents.

Three full cargoes of wheat—800,000 bushels—were sold for shipment over the Hudson Bay route. This, coupled with sharp advances in outside markets, encouraged strong buying that lifted values 2¼ cents a bushel at one time.

Colorful Dizzy Dean Gives Girls Fine Show

Cuts Up For Kay Stammers and Freda James In Boston Tennis

PATS and PANS by —BILL LEWIS—

THERE is just no telling what will come next from the over-worked lips of Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean. . . . Yesterday he came out with the oft-repeated that he would retire next year at the latest—maybe this year. . . Most astounding of all his remarks, however, was that Detroit Tigers should be favorites over St. Louis Cardinals if the two teams meet in the world series this fall. . . . He bases that statement on his belief (?) that Tigers have a better pitching staff and more power. . . . A year ago he would not have admitted that a complete pitching staff or any major league team was the equal even of Brother Paul and himself. . . .

Dizzy isn't a ball player such as those statements would lead you to believe, though. . . . He is an athlete to the core—one who loves to win and who will carry on in his chosen profession until the last ounce of energy has seeped from him. . . . According to those who know, Diz just revels in telling the writing boys something a little different than is expected—hence the story he gave them yesterday.

LOCAL golfing enthusiasts have an opportunity to compete in a really good tournament and at the same time make a contribution to that most worthy organization—the National Institute for the Blind. . . . The annual Cosmopolitan Club tourney for men will be held at the Highlands Club on Sunday next, while the women's meet will be staged at Prince Rupert next Tuesday. . . . All revenue from entry fees for these events will go to the assistance of the blind, and therefore golfers cannot be encouraged too much to compete . . . as it is for an exceptionally worthy cause.

Carl Cronin's Calgary Bronks lost their exhibition Canadian football game yesterday to Sarnia Imperials by a margin of 39-0, but their supporters should not worry about this loss. . . . With a new coach and new players, Bronks were making their first appearance of the season against the greatest club in this broad land, and that was no disgrace, nothing of which to be ashamed. . . . As a matter of fact, it should do the Cronin organization a world of good and have a highly-beneficial effect on their later performances. . . . Just watch if I'm not right when the same clubs meet next week.

DETROITS widely-publicized Brown Bomber—Joe Louis—started in yesterday on his serious training for the heavyweight battle with Max Baer on Sept. 24. . . . It is not a long time, now, until the bout takes place and it is sure to be one of the most widely-watched jousts since the days of the "million-dollar" gates. . . . Last of these was the Dempsey-Tunney era, but they may be revived with the appearance on the fistic horizon of the Tan Terror. . . . He has everything that it takes, apparently, to reach the mighty heights of all time and most followers of the ring sport hope that he gets there.

Thomson Leading In Seniors' Golf Meet At Toronto

TORONTO, Sept. 5—A six-handicap man from the Niakwa club, Winnipeg, playing in his first senior tournament, J. L. M. Thomson shot his way to a two-stroke lead over the first 18-hole stretch of the Canadian senior golfers' association championship yesterday by carding a score of 81. The medal competition will be finished today with another 18 holes.

Thomson's nearest rival at the halfway mark was W. I. Hogg, Hamilton, succumbed completely to rain coming home, taking 43 for an 83. The 1934 champion, R. M. (Bobby) Gray of Rosedale, Toronto, did not defend.

Battle for honors in the second round today will be hard-fought. Three players are only four strokes behind the leader.

SARNIA WINS OVER CALGARY IN GRID GAME

Touring Imperials Beat Calgarians By Large Score of 39-0

By TOMMY GRAHAM

MEWATA STADIUM, CALGARY, Sept. 5.—Drilling through their opponents' line like a augar through softwood, Sarnia Imperials, Dominion football champions, exploded a gridiron bombshell in the faces of 2,500 Calgarians here Wednesday afternoon as they smashed their way to a 39-0 victory over the Calgary Bronks in the opening game of their pre-season tour.

Imperials entrained for Vancouver late Wednesday where they will display their wares Saturday, returning here next Wednesday for a second clash with the Calgary Bronks.

The game, played under ideal weather conditions, was not a very interesting one from a spectator's standpoint, being exceedingly one-sided and loosely played throughout. It was only on rare occasions that the large audience extended their vocal cords, being rather disappointed at the showing of Carl Cronin's proteges.

SCORE EASY WIN

Concentrating their attack to line plunges, occasional extention plays and arial forays, the Sarnia gridiron warriors ripped through their opponents almost at will. They opened their scoring efforts with seven points in the first quarter, increased the margin to 20-0 at half time and went on to score the remaining 19 points in the last two sessions.

Cronin's charges, a band of youngsters built around several seasoned men fought gamely throughout against their more experienced opponents, but were hopelessly outclassed in all departments of the affair. At that Coach Art Massucci used his second team most of the contest.

Given good punting by Stirling and McWaters who handled the most of the kicking duties and who belated the pigskin for plenty of distance throughout, the Imperials added their opponents by a big margin in this department as Mc-Kenzie, the Calgary booter failed to get away one good punt during the contest.

Sarnia's line plunging attack that repeatedly gained big gaps in the Bronk's line, was the outstanding feature of the game and their ability to consistently march 15 first downs through this source. Sarnia moved the yard sticks on running plays and proceedings to the four first downs made by the Bronks.

Reg Spencer, "Bucky" Parsaca, Norm Perry, Beach, MacVicar, Hayes, Stirling and McWaters starred in the offensive play for the winners while Jimmy McQueen, last year junior stole the spotlight from the others with his fine work. Chuck McKenna also played well.

Point-getters for Sarnia were Kwenzer, two touchdowns; Doc MacVicar, touchdown and two singles; Norm Perry, touchdown and a single; Bummer Stirling, touchdown; Jimmy Geary, touchdown; Parsaca, two singles; Johnny Mavore, two singles; and Alex Hayes and Neil Van Horne, a single each.

THE LINEUPS

SARNIA: Snap, Molloy; insides, Butler and Spears; middles, Clawson and MacVicar; outsides, Manore and Stevenson; quarterback, Hayes; flying wing, Paterson; halfbacks, Perry, Stirling and Parsaca; spares, Van Horne, McWaters, Geary, Harris, Moore, Wickware, McLean, Ewener, Parsons, Baker and Beach.

CALGARY: Snap, Munro; insides, Thom and Kelly; middles, Christie and Holmes; outsides, Sprague and Dover, quarterback, Duncan; flying wing, Hickey; halfbacks, MacKenzie, McKenna, and Bannister; spares: Sperka, Evans, Belkin, McLaughlin, Hayter, Harrison, Mc-McCullough, Gibson, Olsen, Wiesyk Lawrence, Cotton, Wares, Ellis and McNeill.

Edmonton Rinks Win In Bowling At Medicine Hat

Two rinks from the Edmonton Club took part in the southern Alberta tournament just concluded at Medicine Hat and were most successful, bringing back with them four of the prizes of the six played for.

W. W. Powe, assisted by Harry Cable, Reg. Godson and Joe Clark, won the Visitors' event, whilst the rink skipped by Walter Smitten, composed of W. F. Howard, Reg Parker and Arch Stewart, won the cup in the secondary rink competition.

Smitten and Howard defeated Godson and Powe in the final of the doubles championship to bring the McCharles Trophy back to the Edmonton rinks having been won last year by Bill McGruther and Wilbur Powe.

Arch Stewart successfully worked his way through all opposition to take the singles championship whilst other members of the party took minor prizes in this event.

In all the party brought back 16 individual prizes and they report a well managed tournament, with visitors from Calgary, Lethbridge and Edmonton being well catered for by the Medicine Hat officials.

Of the 20,000,000 people on relief in the United States, approximately 12,000,000 are women and children, according to statistics.

Maxie Shows He Can Buckle Down

It's not a clowning Max Adelbert Baer that visitors to the former champion's training camp at Speculator, N.Y., now see, but a serious fighter who develops that killer expression as he faces a sparring partner, left, and goes in strenuously for such things as rope-skipping, centre, and bag punching, right, formerly scorned. Which convinces observers that he has his doubts about the outcome of a bout with Joe Louis. Yesterday Mike Jacobs, promoter, was pleased with the serious way in which Maxie went into his drills. The battle between Baer and Louis on September 24 is expected to be one of the best in American fight circles for some time. The winner is doubtful with Baer buckling down so religiously.

JUNIOR NINES PLAY FOURTH GAME FRIDAY

Grits Seek Win to Tie Final Series With Safeway Crew

A triumph Friday will place Army and Navy Grits on even basis with Safeways with two wins each in their best-four-of-seven city championship series—and that's just what those fighting Gritmen intend to do to the junior ball playoffs. The game, fourth of the series, will get underway at 6:00 o'clock at the Boyle Street ball yard.

Losing out in the first and second games, Grits behind steady twirling from Lucy Tougas, belted their way right back into the picture with a 4-0 triumph last Monday. They're fighting mad—especially Rusty Wynn—are those Grit lads. Wynn, more peeved than the rest of the crew, for his defeat against Ralph Morgan in the first game, is expected to do mound duties, and the temperamental twirler has delightful visions of seeing his mates square the series.

With Morgan beaten last Monday, and Cunningham hardly rested enough for another bout with the Grits, roundsman for Safeways could not easily be named. However, Safeways will be well represented with possibly Superstein. It's to be a tough battle whichever way the count should go.

Wetaskiwin Ball Team Is Tendered Banquet Wednesday

WETASKIWIN, Sept. 5—One hundred enthusiastic ball fans attended a complimentary banquet in honor of the Wetaskiwin ball club which was tendered to the players especially to losers Pat Davis, Carter Webber, Mut Anderson and Pete McCready who leaves the city for their homes.

Earl Lindskog in a happy speech complimented the players on their playing ability and on their sportsmanship in accepting the breaks for and against them and on their gentlemanly behavior at temperatying times.

R. R. French an executive member of the club presided and spoke on the effect of sport on international unity. All the players spoke briefly and hoped they would have the opportunity of visiting Wetaskiwin again either to play ball or visit the friends they had made during the 1935 season.

Other speakers promised continued support and expressed a determination to retain the Brewers cup against all challengers and win the provincial championship again in 1936.

Card Mound Star Blushes Modestly

Dizzy Dean Not So Sure of Cards—Gives Edge to Detroit

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—Dizzy Dean, all arm and mouth as the Cardinals skyrocketed to a world championship last year, was blushingly modest last night as he gave Detroit Tigers the edge in the next world series and spoke of his approaching retirement.

The thunder was gone from the great one who a year ago scoffed at the efforts of the "Detroit Pussy Cats" and hailed himself as the all-time All-American everything.

"Maybe me'n Paul'll win 10 more. Maybe not, you can't tell," he muttered in his new role. Dizzy wasn't even sure he'll be in the world series this year, what with the Cubs and Giants causing so much trouble at his heels.

"But if we get into the world series we're going to have rough sledding. You know as much as I hate to say it, if the Cardinals play the Tigers I believe Detroit will have the edge. They got a stronger pitching staff than ours and they got more power."

DIZZY FED UP

The hop still rides the fast one for Diz, but he is just about fed up on baseball as a business. That's what he said last night. Tonight might be different.

This year, maybe the next, and that'll be about enough for ol' Diz. I should have enough money so the interest will pay me $250 a month and nobody needs more than that.

"I don't need all the money in the world to live on and I don't believe I'm getting the kick out of the game I used to. When you know they're depending on you all the time, that you will be shoved in whenever a situation gets bad, I'm telling you it ain't no fun."

Kels have their scales inside their skins. Their slipperiness is a valuable asset to them in escaping from their enemies, and is due to a highly polished skin with exuded a sticky mucus.

Softball

Young Tories pushed out into the final bracket of the City and District championship last night by taking their second game straight from Westmount Community team with a 7 to 5 score. It was just a nice brisk workout for the intermediate champs who seldom had to come out from under wraps to control the game.

Neil Colville again contributed a home run but with none on base it was just a good long swat. Vince did the chucking as Monigomery got a night off.

Score by innings:

Westmount	000 020 010—3
Young Tories	321 000 100—7

Pogmore and Gillies; Vince and M. Colville.

Umpire: Max Goldsmith.

FINALS START TONIGHT.

Strathcona Hotel seniors and Young Tories oppose each other at Boyle street tonight in the first encounter of the two out of three series for the championship of City and District. The Motor Supply Cup will be at stake.

Cliff Aicher will have the strongest lineup that the senior champs have had for a year or so and with Kalensky doing the pitching it will be interesting to see how the Tories stack up against the best in the higher classification. Hostilities commence at 6:30.

The Edmonton anticipate a trip to Calgary on the next week-end to engage in the finals of the Alberta Senior championship so that one night's game will do them a lot of good after a layoff of several weeks.

Place Bet Highest At 'Peg Wednesday

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5—The highest price ever paid on a Winnipeg track for a "place" bet was paid at Polo Park yesterday when Home Waltz came in second in the first race, a five-furlong sprint for Western Canada three-year-olds.

Home Waltz returned his parimutuel backers $121.90 for second and $32.50 for "show." The race was won by Simosee, whose first position was worth only $6.45 to his supporters.

LADY GOLFERS ADVANCE PLAY SEMI - FINALS

Provide Excitement in Totem Pole Golf Championship

JASPER PARK LODGE, Sept. 5—Once more the ladies provided the excitement yesterday playing in the Totem Pole golf championship. As a result two Manitoba players stand in the way of an all Toronto final. Lois McLaren, Winnipeg, will meet Ada MacKenzie in the semi-finals of the match and Barbara Northwood, Winnipeg, will meet Mrs. Eric Phillips, Toronto, in the lower bracket.

Miss MacKenzie had the scare of her life from Mrs. R. P. Baker, of Vancouver, and the match was not decided until the home green. They were all square at the turn, but because of some one-putt greens, Mrs. Baker was three up at the 13th. Miss MacKenzie was in a tough spot and by a superb display of golf won the next four holes to be one up on the 17th. Miss MacKenzie played a beauty to the green with her second from a hanging lie and from a fine of a half as Mrs. Baker found a trap off the tee. Mrs. Baker played splendid golf for most of the game and put up a decidedly plucky battle against the brilliant easterner.

Miss McLaren, of Winnipeg, beat Mrs. Carl Havens, of Seattle, while Miss Barbara Northwood, Winnipeg, beat Mrs. C. H. Chapman, Edmonton. Mrs. Phillips had a rousing battle on her hands to beat Miss W. Love, of Toronto, who put up a brilliant opposition against Edmonton's more experienced opponent.

In the men's championship Carl Havens, Seattle, beat Percy Herring, Edmonton. Henry Ward, Regina, beat Norman White, Winnipeg. Capt. C. V. Darce, Edmonton, beat Leigh Walsh, Calgary. H. Black, Calgary, beat R. McLean, Edmonton. Paul Moore, Kansas City, beat Reg. Arkell, Vancouver. Paige Lehman, Minneapolis, beat F. Burns, Seattle. R. Cladwick, Winnipeg, beat Alex McKinnon, Edmonton and R. P. Baker, Vancouver, beat Ben Cool, Calgary.

Annual Tournament Is Narrowed Down To Eights Bracket

Glittering Matches Now Expected for Large Galleries at Local Tennis Courts.

Excellent progress is being made in the annual Glenora Tennis Club tournament, now under way at the club's six shale courts, 120 street. Most events have narrowed down to the eights and further glittering play is expected to attract large galleries for the rest of the week. Attendance so far has been considerable, attesting to the great popularity of the game.

Fraser Goddard entered the last eight when he scored a hard-fought, notable victory over the indefatigable Roger Waters at 6-3, 6-3. Waters got away to a splendid start, taking the first two games. Goddard then ran out five in a row, paused while Waters annexed another and then ran out the set.

GODDARD RAN OUT

Goddard continued his pressure and ran out the second set by the same score.

Stan Goddard did not fare quite so well. Pitted against Harry Kinloch, city champion, Stan took the short end of the 6-0, 6-1 score, although he exchanged many scorching drives with the petit champion.

Those two perennial, arch, adversaries, Fred J. Mitchell and F. C. Casselman renewed the warfare that has gone on over the last 15 or 20 years. As usual it was a ding, dong battle, with Casselman leading 4-3 in the first set. Here Mitchell braced and took three in succession for the set. His task in the second set was a little easier.

Tommy Bellamy, who had won a resounding victory over Fred Robinson in the first round went on to eliminate the veteran George Laycock in the next.

GOOD DOUBLES

Some scintillating play was witnessed in the doubles. Dunsworth-Mitchell were forced to display their best wares to win over the Laycock-Waters duo. Trailing 3-5 in the second set, after winning the first, Dunsworth-Mitchell had to call on all their court-craft and reserves to take four games in succession.

Other doubles encounters provided excellent entertainment.

Incidentally, a look over the doubles teams in the tourney gives an unusual insight into the brotherly love prevailing in the game.

Here are some of the brothers competing—Goddard Brothers and Goddard; Adamson-Adamson; Graves-Graves; Brockie-Brockie; Gunderson-Gunderson.

HAINES FAILS AS CARDS WIN OVER BOSTON

Veteran Could Not Win 220th Tilt As Champs Take It 6-3

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—Old Pop Haines failed in his 11th try for his 220th Major league victory, but his world champion Cardinal teammates rallied behind a relief hurler, to pound out at late 6-3 triumph over Boston Braves that kept them two games in front of the second-place New York Giants.

The veteran "knuckleball" artist, who has been trying since July 21 to boost his 16-year victory string above the 199 mark, was replaced in the eighth by Bill Walker after being reached for six hits in the first seven innings.

Dizzy Dean went to the hill for the Cardinals in the ninth and retired three Braves in quick order.

Boston	100 010 010—3 8 1
St. Louis	000 100 14x—6 12 1

Cubs Triumph Over Phillies

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Augie Galan hammered out two home runs, one with the bases full, to support Larry French's steady pitching yesterday and Chicago Cubs brushed past the Phillies 8-2 in their pursuit of St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants.

Philadelphia	100 000 001—2 8 0
Chicago	201 004 01x—8 8 1

Pezzullo, Bivin, Jorgens and Wilson; French and Hartnett.

Giants Defeat Crippled Reds

CINCINNATI, Sept. 5. — The crippled Cincinnati Reds managed to cause their usual amount of trouble for the Giants yesterday but New York still won the opening game of its last western swing 6-4 to stay in the midst of the hot pennant fight.

Carl Hubbell went the full route for the Giants to win his 20th victory of the season.

New York	002 010 201—6 11 2
Cincinnati	200 000 011—4 12 2

Charlotte Acres Wins Title Swim And Prize Money

Much Postponed Distance Race Well Contested With Eva Bein Home in Second Place.

TORONTO, Sept. 5. — Charlotte Acres, pretty 22-year-old Vancouver brunette, first Canadian girl to win a world's professional swimming championship, stroked her 156 pounds to the five-mile title and $1000 first prize in the much postponed Canadian National Exhibition swim on the lakefront here last night.

Breaking down a lead Nell Hurley, Memphis, Tenn., held almost from the start, the Pacific Coast swimmer took command half a mile from the finish line and climbed out of the water 50 yards ahead of Eva Bein, 23-year-old New Yorker, who finished the same distance ahead of Miss Hurley.

A crowd variously estimated at between 25,000 and 50,000 roared encouragement as the Vancouver girl, who finished third last year, quickened her stroke from 58 to 64 a minute and sped past the tiring Memphis pacemaker as they neared the 4½-mile mark.

ACRES MADE DASH

Miss Hurley had gone into the lead 200 yards from the start and held an advantage varying from 20 to 100 yards for more than four miles.

She was swimming strongly, stroking 65 to the minute, and seemed assured of a comfortable win when a combination of the Vancouver girl's speed and her own fatigue defeated her. She was forced to watch Miss Acres and Miss Bein crawl past her but held third place easily from Janet Strehler, Toronto, who finished 200 yards behind.

In fifth place was May Looney, of Warren, Ohio, last year's winner and a favorite to repeat. She was rushed from the water to hospital where doctors treated her for a fractured rib. She had swam the whole distance with the handicap, received when another swimmer kicked her at the plunge-in.

Sixth place, the last money position, went to Mrs. Evelyn Armstrong, of Detroit, who finished 50 yards behind Miss Looney. Miss Bein won $500; Miss Hurley $250; Miss Sheather $125; Miss Looney $75 and Mrs. Armstrong $50.

The winner's time was two hours, 31 minutes and 15 seconds, three minutes and six seconds more than Miss Looney's time last year and 22 minutes and 20 seconds longer than Gianni Gambi took to win the men's championship at the same distance last week.

PAINS IN ARMS

Miss Hurley, who is 20 and weighs 136 pounds, sat on a dressing tent bed after the swim, her teeth chattering with cold from the long period in the 63 degree water, and said pains in her arms and the speed of Miss Acres cost her the swim. She had difficulty, she said, in keeping up her stroke in the last mile, but probably would have found Miss Acres too fast for her anyway.

The Vancouver girl recovered quickly from her exertion and was dressed and on her way home half an hour after the swim. Others sat in the dressing tent sipping warm drinks and massaging their tired arms.

The word "hooch" came from "hoochinoo," a liquor made by a tribe of Alaskan Indians.

NELLIE QUINCE HAS BRILLIANT RACE AT 'PEG

Wonnacott Horse Gives Smashing Triumph Feature Race

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5—Nellie Quince, owned by Ira Wonnacott's Big Four stable of Edmonton, ran a smashing race to win the sixth running of the Manitoba Derby at Polo Park yesterday afternoon.

The game filly added $2,605 to her owner's winnings and clearly demonstrated that she is the leading performer of her age on the circuit. The race had a gross value of $5,465, and was the richest derby ever contested here. It was the second richest race in Winnipeg's history.

Marcus Docile, owned by Mrs. Steadman, received the bulk of the play in the betting and ran a game race but could get no closer than two lengths to the winner at the finish. Nellie Quince attracted little support in spite of good training reports and fairly good form in distance races this season.

TRACK WAS HEAVY

Over a track that was almost heavy after continuous rain, twelve three-year-olds left the starting gate for the mile and a quarter trip. Jockey Langdon, who was on a visit here from New York, had the mount on Broadway Breeze and sent the Dutton colt into the lead at the start and by the time that the half-mile mark was reached he was six lengths in the van of the others. At this point Tilenada and Bowery Su were closest up with Nellie Quince running third in sixth position. As they approached the last turn Broadway Breeze was beginning to waver and Nellie Quince coming with a rush that stamped her as a certain winner. Marcus Docile moved up stoutly at the same time, but he was obviously doing his best through the stretch and was beaten two lengths. Broadway Breeze finished third, seven lengths behind Marcus Docile.

Simsoee and Mac Pharais, favorites in their respective races, paid $17.45 in the double. Simsoee scratched from the derby won the first race by 12 lengths.

Westy's Tim won another purse by defeating Yankee Doodle in the fourth. He came from behind in the stretch to beat Moonsan a half length with Rosemay Baw third.

Reddy Fox led all the way in the sixth and had two lengths to spare over the heavily played Yankee Doodle at the finish.

Indian Dance raced to a six-length win in the seventh and Flanude for a Quinella of $13.50. It was another win for Jockey Hoar.

Brighter Days In Civil Service

OTTAWA, Sept. 5. — Given the full co-operation of civil service organizations and the civil service generally, Charles H. Bland, chairman of the civil service commission, Wednesday expressed confidence that betterment of conditions of government employes would come in the future.

"We have a good act but there can be no progress without this co-operation. We really have only touched the fringe of things which can be done to improve the service," he declared.

The occasion was a luncheon tendered by the officers and executive of the Civil Service Federation of Canada in honor of Hon. Dr. W. J. Roche, retired chairman of the commission; Mr. Bland, his successor; Adrien Plouffe and J. H. Sluis, civil service commissioners.

Tough Row To Hoe

Detroit Prepares For World Series

DETROIT, Sept. 5. — Manager Mickey Cochrane and his Detroit Tigers may not know it, but real world series fever gripped their home field.

Manager Mike and members of his club, far out in front in the American League pennant race, have shied away from any mention of world series lately because of "jinx" possibilities, as they explained it. So with the Tiger pilot and his squad in Philadelphia, the Detroit front office gave the "go ahead" signal.

"Yeah—this is for the series," grinned head-groundskeeper Neal Conway, as he directed half a hundred workmen laying 2,000 feet of new sod in the infield. From the heights of the press box came the ring of hammers and carpenters reinforced the section which had fall seated more than 500 writers.

A gigantic derrick towered beyond the left field wall, lifting sections of the electrically operated scoreboard, which will be moved to right field, from which will seat 17,500 persons will be built this year, the same as last. The new stands will increase the park's seating capacity to about 47,000.

Gardiner Heard At Ontario Meet

NORTH GOWER, Ont., Sept. 5.—Better times would return only when there was a better understanding among the nations and Canada should be ready when that comes, Hon. James G. Gardiner, premier of Saskatchewan, told a gathering here last night. He spoke in support of H. S. Arkell, Liberal candidate in Carleton county.

We want a government in Canada put there before the actual return of prosperity, just as in 1896 a government that is ready to trade with the nations of the world to start moving trains of wheat, to start the wheels of industry," Premier Gardiner said. "That is the only way to end unemployment. We in Canada can only benefit by coming closer and closer to the people who want to trade with us and we should put a government in power that wants to do this."

Tribal Feud Deadlocked To Peace Conclave Held In Wild, Wild Waziristan

Natives Arrive Late—Are Fingerprinted, Watched By Armed Guards

By GORDON SINCLAIR
Bulletin's Roaming Reporter

MIRAMSHA, Waziristan, Sept. 5.—From time to time the papers, magazines, films and even the operas break into a rash of glorification for some manly service in distant outposts.

A cycle of whoop-de-doop for the Mounties is followed by one for the Foreign Legion not to mention the Coast-guard, the Pony Express and the good old Texas Rangers.

Gordon Sinclair

In Waziristan are the unsung gallants, the Tochi Scouts, most exciting, highest paid service in the British empire, only branch of the entire army where no man, regardless of age or wage, is allowed to marry.

Here are the eyes and ears—and some say the brains—of Britain's Indian army. Twenty-two white officers controlling 1,000 brown snipers drawn from every tribe on the frontier who spy out the distant hills who actually guard the army when it's on the march.

The scouts are the only branch of the service who eat, sleep, do, wheel into action on their own responsibility without the "yes yes" of politicians. As all know, the army dare not fire a shot until war lords give them the okay. The scouts say hang the politicians let's at 'em.

NEVER LOSE RIFLES

Probably nothing explains the swashbuckling attitude of the Tochi Scouts so well as their sentries. Britain's army all across the frontier, sometimes as at Peshawar and Razmak, concentrated in gangs of 1,000 and more, makes every sentry patrol every beat with his loaded rifle chained to his wrist and waist so that a raider, even though he butchers the sentry, can't get away with the precious shooting rod.

The scouts spread over a far wider and far tougher area than any brigade, use tribesmen as sentries, don't bother to chain man to gun and have never lost a rifle. If figures tell you just how tough a country is I mention that Waziristan has about the same number of people as Toronto, and three murders every day of the year.

In none of these do the scouts interfere except as umpires and this is good but rather unbelievable fun. Last week, as I've mentioned before, an old boy called Zangi Khan came out of his family watch tower, faced Mecca, said his prayers and fingered his beard in contemplation when a shot whizzed straight through his mouth, killing the old man instantly.

As he lay dead two more shots punctured his body; then his brother came to see to it he was wrong, was shot down too, and the war was on.

By nightfall 40 people were dead but the Tochi Scouts, watching this slaughter from three miles off, took no action whatever. It was none of their official business although several scouts were domestically interested.

But in the scout barracks is a young and very efficient umpire, called the political agent. He represents King George. As such he is an honest and honorable man.

PEACE PACTS

To him there often come hairy warriors from one or more clan asking that he draw up a peace pact. The family of Durrli is tired of sniping the clan of Majan and crave peace.

The agent says, sure, it's a pleasure to be a peacemaker. The scouts go out and get the name and fingerprints of every man entitled to come to the peace meeting. They are checked up in record rooms to see if they have been agitators or trigger fingers and if not, are permitted to come. The fact they have been murderers is of no importance. USUALLY LATE.

A date is usually set for, say, Tuesday, but the clansmen don't turn up until Thursday. It means polishing up their last-minute score sheets and showing their almighty independence.

At last they send word that they're coming with 400 to 500 pacifying baby. Two hundred scouts fix bayonets, pull full marching kit on their backs and line the ramparts of the fort where the peace palaver is held. Over the hills come two lumbering columns, each under a blood relative or a sworn enemy.

Their rifles have been left behind beside the fluttering banners which mark the graves of their latest victim. As they near the fort machine guns are trained on them and this surveillance is never relaxed.

At the wire they are met by an assistant to the murder umpire who has the fingerprints taken weeks or even months before. As each man's name is called he steps forward is quickly searched, his fingerprints compared and in he goes. About a hundred men pass through at an hour, but since three to four hundred are a usual number for a peace palaver, it takes hours to get them inside the fort and by that time the place has begun to smell higher than a kite.

"MURDER AGAINST MURDER"

At last they are seated before the agent and the gruesome business of checking off murder for murder begins.

"Sahibo, we come to make peace but it is only fair that we of the Clan of Habib get recompense of 40 rifles for 37 of our men have died by shot these past five months . . ."

"Name them. Name them!" shout the opposition.

The older warrior snaps back: "You yourself shot a woman . . . you it was who killed Sherani."

"And you killed Jan," they howl.

This is a signal for the real haggling of the palaver. Each murdered man is checked off by the name of the one who killed him. It is all known long in advance. The tally is about even; if it were not they would not have come here.

FIGURE IT UP

The agent figures it all up like a clerk in the bazaar taking the final count. He gives the boys a speech about the absurdity of these blood feuds and tells them the country of the best men, fines each side something in the way of cash, guns or livestock and draws up the peace document. Sometimes it is supposed to assure peace from that day forward; sometimes it's just an armistice over harvest time. That part does not matter because long sooner or later some young buck tries his aim and the war clouds flame skyhigh.

About the only lasting result is that the political agent has had a little experience in diplomacy and the wives back in distant outposts get a new dress. A peace pact nearly always calls for them to have a new dress but the men do the buying. No Waziri woman ever buys anything for herself.

NOSES FOR SALE

Incidentally, the proper way of showing a wife you're mad at her is then blank blank is to cut her nose off, the time-honored insult for infidelity. So many women in this homeland of homicide have their noses cut off that a wise trader in Peshawar recently got the idea of importing artificial noses from an undertaking establishment in England and selling them to tribal warriors who have regretted their hasty amputation of the dishonored $12 each.

This suits everybody, but the Basnu trader rather hopes the British nose-makers will get around to making brown ones soon. He points out that white noses on a brown face are most unbecoming and while his experience in walnut juice dyes is not bad, they do leave a rather streaky face. He's written several letters about this but nobody seems to heed him.

He can always get various sizes though, and the speed with which new noses turn out to him by air mail indicates to this trader that an awful lot of English husbands and wives have noses off because otherwise how would the undertaker always have such a large stock on hand?

Of course the trader has never seen an Englishwoman or any other white woman. No one in this part of the world has, because no white woman has ever been nearer than 80 miles to the place and no white man has ever walked the roads after dark.

It's a tough country.

AUTOMOBILE SAFETY NOW CAMPBELL AIM

Sir Malcolm Says Tests Reveal Machines Not High Speed Safe

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 5.—Sir Malcolm Campbell, the only man ever to travel on land at the rate of five miles a minute, expressed the hope yesterday that his tests would result in the construction of safer motor cars.

"I do not consider a speed of 90, 80 or even 70 miles an hour on the public highways," said the cleverest Englishman who Tuesday boosted his own land speed record to 301.1292 miles an hour.

"Tests reveal many machines are not safe to drive even 40 miles an hour, yet the owners send them wobbling along at nearly twice that speed. I hope my tests and drives result in perfection of cars to such an extent they will withstand the severest strain in an emergency."

"I may quit the sport and then again I may not," he said.

"Only the future can tell. I have not decided whether to rebuild the Bluebird, construct an entire new car, or quit entirely."

Sir Malcolm said reports he already had ordered the construction of another Bluebird, larger and faster, were false.

He is expected to leave for New York to sail for London shortly.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE BULLETIN

By E. V. SHEPARD

FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

A FATAL ERROR

Ordinarily North bids and plays his cards well. Perhaps he had a day off when he played a game call at no trump, he made an error in play fatal to his hopes of going game.

Bidding went: North, 1 no trump; third hand, 2 clubs; North, 2 no trumps; South, 3 clubs; North, 3 no trumps which should have been made easily.

The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. Dummy's Q won the trick. The Q of clubs was led and West refused to make things easy by covering with the K. East dropped the 8, which was fairly conclusive evidence that he held no more of the suit. The next lead from dummy should have been, and was, a low club. Again West played low. North should have played his ace, then led back his 10 and overtaken with dummy's J, keeping the suit going until West had to take his K of clubs.

When West decided to take his K of clubs he had a chance of two sound leads. His best plan of procedure would have been to lead back his last diamond, hoping that declarer held the K and that East held the ace, 10 and others. The other sound return lead would have been his 2 of spades, hoping to catch partner with a spade tenace which would defeat the contract. The latter lead would have given declarers 3 spade tricks, but North would still have gone game, taking in all 2 diamonds, 3 hearts and 4 club tricks. Leading back a diamond also would have defeated the contract.

Having lost a single club to West a return lead of diamonds would have put declarer in with his ace. Dummy could have been put in with the 9 of hearts, having the exposed hand overtake declarer's 2 of hearts with the Q and run off the long run of clubs. On which declarer would let go his spades, knowing that he held in the two hands 9 certain and some tricks for game. Anyway, defenders played so as to have assured in case declarer handled clubs wrongly and did not block the long run of dummy's clubs.

I am not informed why declarer failed to go game. I assume that he was the second club trick with his 10, then led his ace of that suit, only to awaken to the fact that clubs were of no further use. The only entry to dummy was the Q of hearts and West still held the blocking 8 of clubs. North doubtless took his 3 visible tricks then defenders took the rest just defeating the contract a trick.
